U. S. WOMAN IS HELD IN CUBA AS PLOTTER AGAINST AIR SERVICE

Mrs. Morlote Denies Plan Involving Colombia and America.

SOUGHT TO SELL KEY FOR CODE, IS CHARGE

flier's Widow Seized as She Prepares to Sail for Massachusetts.

LATE HUSBAND WAS PILOT IN ISLE'S ARMY

With Gen. Herrera Absent, Public Attaches but Slight Weight to Action.

Marianao, Cuba, Aug. 31 (A.P.).—Mrs. Martha Lane Morlote, an American woman, was held here today under military guard under charges of high treason in connection with an alleged plot to reveal Cuban military secrets. She said she was mystified by the government's action.

Mrs. Morlote, formerly of Longmeadow, Mass., and widow of the late Lieut. Bogelio Morlote, of the Cuban Army Air Corps, was arrested yesterday by military authorities and ordered detained for 72 hours while investigation was made into her alleged espionage.

She was specifically charged with "entering into negotiations with secret agents of Colombia and the United States to sell the secret key of the Cuban army air corps code."

Her arrest by officers of the general staff of the Cuban army took place shortly after she had booked passage on the steamship Morro Castle, which sailed for New York yesterday.

Detained with her at Camp Columbia is Luis Marti, a soldier who had been an orderly under Lieut. Morlote up until the time the latter was killed in an airplane accident at Alacranes July 1.

"I know nothing of the charges against me," she told newspapermen. "I have been in mourning since my husband was killed in an airplane accident on July 1 and know nothing of any 'secret keys' he might have possessed to the Cuban military code.

"If he had any such 'keys' he did not impart them to me. I was just about to sail for Longmeadow to visit my father, Roy Lane, who has been seriously ill, when the officers placed me under arrest. I can not understand why this action has been taken against me."

Gen. Herrera Absent.

Gen. Alberto Herrera, chief of the general staff of the army, went to Pinar Del Rio Province for a week-end trip shortly after Mrs. Morlote was detained, and could not be reached today. None of the members of the staff here would discuss the affair.

The case has aroused considerable comment here, although the general public attaches little importance to the charges placed against the American woman. Several prominent Cubans said they did not see why the United States or the remote country of Colombia should be particularly interested in the military secrets of this republic.

And they point to the inconsistency of espionage charges, as far as the United States is concerned, owing to the fact that Capt. Jack Bean, of the United States Army Air Corps, for months has been in complete charge of the instruction school at Camp Columbia, where recruits to the Cuban Army Air Service are instructed in the rudiments of flying and aerial warfare.

Siamese King to Visit U. S. for Eye Operation

Bangkok, Siam, Aug. 31 (A.P.).—A semiofficial announcement says that King Prajadhipok, who has been suffering from an eye ailment for four years, will visit New York for an operation.

Present arrangements call for a trip by way of Hong Kong, Japan and Vancouver, returning by the same route. The king and queen will travel incognito. It is understood the king is suffering from cataracts on both eyes.

Tornado in Texas Claims One Life

Storm Strikes Airport in Houston, Damaging Two Hangars and Garage.

Houston, Tex., Aug. 31 (A.P.).—Rising from a blackened sky, a tornado accompanied by a high wind and severe electrical and rainstorm struck the Houston Municipal Airport and vicinity today, claiming one life, damaging two hangars and demolishing a garage.

William A. Glover, 73, who lives near the flying field, was killed when a bolt of lightning struck a tree beneath which he was seated as the second tornado within a month struck the airport.

A heavy downpour of rain, which followed the storm, flooded Houston gutters and disrupted traffic.

Calvin Coolidge Says:

This has been designated by the State and national governments as Labor Day. It will be duly observed throughout the entire country. Very properly a great deal will be said about the dignity of work. That can not be too often emphasized. But after all, the way to demonstrate the true dignity of work is by working.

The wage earners of the United States, considering rates of pay and conditions of employment, occupy the most fortunate position in the labor world. The general quality of their leadership is improving. They think beyond higher wages and shorter hours. The old theory of reducing hours and output in order to increase wages and prices has generally been abandoned. It defeats itself by limited sales.

The success of the wage earners and the economic success of our country have been preeminently due to the general refusal of labor to curtail production. We have been willing to work. Helped by machinery, we have increased production, which in turn has increased both wages and profits while reducing prices. This benefits everybody and is a process that has no ascertainable limits. The immeasurable hope for labor lies in following this great principle of our industrial development.

YANKS' BATS SILENT AS NATS WIN, 5 TO 1

Hadley Yields but Five Hits; Hayes' Error Prevents a Shutout.

WEST HOME-HIT HERO

By FRANK H. YOUNG

A Sabbath gathering of approximately 20,000 turned out at Griffith Stadium yesterday to take a final look at the 1930 edition of Yankees, and none appeared to be disappointed, for the Nationals trimmed them for the third time in succession and for the fifteenth time this season in eighteen starts. The final score was 5 to 1, with the victory increasing the second-place lead of the Johnsons to six and one-half games, the same margin which the Mackmen, who also won, hold over the Nats.

Irving Hadley had Shawkey's men literally eating out of his hand and managed to escape his usual bad inning, finishing as strongly as he started. Had he been able to fool Lynn Lary in the same manner in which he did the rest of the Yanks, he would have been credited with a two-hit game, but the New York shortstop cracked out three hits himself, one a triple.

But for an error by Jack Hayes, the "Big Towners" would have been whitewashed, the Nat second-sacker fumbling with two dead and Lary on third in the eighth as a result of his triple, the only extra-baser of the game. So effective was the Washington moundsman that, but for the first inning and the aliens' scoring flame, they were unable to get a man past first base.

Herb Pennock, veteran southpaw, and George Sherid did the Yankee flinging and they were fairly effective, yielding but ten safeties all told, but several of these came at timely moments from a Washington standpoint. Sammy West led the home attack, with three singles, two of these driving in runs, while Roy Spencer also came through with a brace of tally-producers. Heinie Manush was

TWO GRAFT QUIZZES TO START THIS WEEK

Grand Jury to Investigate Police Extortion and Bonds Charges.

DOCTOR TO GO ON STAND

Two grand jury investigations are to be launched this week by United States Attorney Leo A. Rover, witnesses in each having been subpenaed to appear before the inquisitorial body tomorrow.

The investigations have to do with charges of collusion between bondsmen and lawyers and bondsmen and police and also involve charges of extortion against Policeman Spottswood F. Gravely, former Third Precinct detective, who now is a private in the Second Precinct.

Mr. Rover has called before the grand jury Dr. James R. Armstrong, of the Montgomery Apartments, North Capitol and M streets, to testify in the alleged bond racket, and has called Miss Elizabeth G. Campbell—girl of many aliases—in the inquiry into the charges against Gravely.

Dr. Armstrong revived the rumors of collusion between police and bondsmen and bondsmen and lawyers when he wrote Mr. Rover, requesting the privilege of telling the grand jury what he knows. Mr. Rover accepted the invitation because earlier in the week he had refused a grand jury inquiry because Milton S. Kronheim, president of the Professional Bondsmen's Association, had no information to back up or repudiate the reputed charges.

Miss Campbell in Police Court Thursday accused Gravely of having obtained money from her for protection and declared that despite that the man had raided her on three different occasions. The jury evidently believed her, for she was acquitted on the charge of assaulting Gravely, although convicted on the assault charge against a police woman.

Four Tourist Guides Seized For Tactics at White House

Quartet Runs Afoul of Law After Complaints Charging Sightseeing Conductors With Using Strong-Arm Methods to Get Business.

Along the walks bordering the White House all was quiet and serene last night, with the reasons blue-coated and badged, while in the ranks of the licensed guides mild consternation prevailed at the arrest of four of their number.

Several complaints having filtered through the higher officers that the tourist guides let their prattle develop into strong-arm tactics, Policeman W. J. Livermore attached to the Traffic Bureau, launched a one-man crusade.

His incursion into the region of the guides, who loiter particularly on the Pennsylvania avenue and East Executive avenue sides of the White House, led him to nab the four on charges of soliciting business, while against one of the men he also placed a charge of operating without a license.

They included Clarence White, 29 years old, of Oak street near Fourteenth street northwest; Edwin F. Rowles, 35 years old, of S street near Eighteenth street northwest, who was booked on the extra charge; John Francis Miller, 30 years old, of Tenth street near D street northwest, and Emory S. Davis, of Ninth street near S street northwest. They pwut up small collateral and were promptly released.

The business of being a licensed guide is somewhat lucrative, police say, provided htere are enough tourists to be taured. The guides sometimes forget themselves and become somewhat obnoxious to the more prominent of the local folk, who are

COUNTY CALM UNDER COMING PRIMARY FIGHT

Prince Georges Is Quiet Zone in Comparison to Montgomery.

BOTH PARTIES OFFER COMPLETE TICKETS

Each Has Contests Within Organization, but None Is Bitter.

DEMOCRATS AND G.O.P. WORK SIDE BY SIDE

Recent Crab Feast of Early and Parran Is Cited as an Example.

By EDWARD T. FOLLIARD.

A primary election is about to be held in Prince Georges County, Md., but nobody seems to be greatly excited about it. Compared with Montgomery County, Prince Georges is a political zone of quiet. Not that the voters are not interested; they are interested. But, unlike their neighbors in Montgomery, they refuse to get worked up about it.

In the primary, which is to be held a week from today, the voters, 50 per cent of whom work in Washington, will choose the Democratic and Republican nominees for county offices, and also the Democratic and Republican nominees for a seat in the national House of Representatives. These nominees then will fight it out in the general election in November.

Each party has contests within its ranks, but none of these could be described as bitter. There is no well-organized opposition faction such as the one that now is trying to unhorse Maj. E. Brooke Lee, the Democratic leader in Montgomery. As for harsh charges with mud clinging to them, none are being made.

Offices Often Divided.

From the looks of things, it is doubtful if there will be much passion displayed even when the campaign becomes a straight-out Democratic and Republican fight. One reason for this, perhaps, is the fact that in Prince Georges the offices frequently are divided, a Republican holding this office and a Democrat that one.

Take the two important offices of State's attorney and sheriff, for example. The present State's attorney is J. Frank Parran, a Republican; the present sheriff, Charles S. Early, a Democrat.

For four years now, Mr. Parran and Mr. Early have worked together. They have handled the celebrated Brady bomb case and other important cases, and always in the closest harmony.

Hosts at Outing.

With the end of their terms approaching, the two men decided to play hosts at a farewell outing. This was held last Saturday at Mr. Parran's place on the Patuxent, and to it were invited Republican and Democratic politicians alike.

Literally it was a love feast. At a long table stood Republicans and Democrats, laughing and joking, the while they ate crabs and crackers. When Justice of the Peace Thomas G. Griffith, a Democrat, of Forrestville, ran out of crabs, Albert R. Hassell, a Republican, who wants to be

HUGE THRONGS FLOCK TO SEE PARADE TODAY

Firemen Ready to March as Crowning Event of Labor Day.

DEPARTURES OFFSET BY VISITORS' INFLUX

Six States to Have Men in Largest Procession Yet Scheduled.

STARTING TIME SET FOR 11 A. M. SHARP

Baseball Games, Picnics and Dances to Claim Crowds in Afternoon.

Flanked by holiday throngs swelled to vast proportions by the influx of counless thousands, a firemen's parade designed as the most pretentious in its colorful history awaits only a flourish of trumpets this morning to sweep up Pennsylvania avenue as the crowning feature of a monster Labor Day celebration.

Converging on Washington from miles around, numberless excursionists and pleasure-seekers poured into the District throughout yesterday and last night by train and automobile to offset by an indefinitely wide margin the many who have deserted the city in the usual Labor Day hegira to the shore, the mountains and other nearby resorts.

While the downtown section yesterday attested in some part to the evacuation of the city by a huge slice of the populace, with President Hoover and almost every member of his Cabinet in the vanguard of those who sought rest and recreation elsewhere, the night witnessed the arrival of caravans from throughout the region, with many more visitors expected before the start of the parade at 11 o'clock this morning.

Clear Weather Predicted.

A promise of the Weather Bureau for clear weather, even though not as crisp as might be desired, gave promise of a gala observance of the day, with numerous baseball games, athletic events, picnics, outings, dances and other affairs to add to the enjoyment of the merrymakers in the wake of the parade.

The immensity of that event, assuming each year a constantly widening aspect, loomed on this occasion with an expected record crowd to contribute in gaining further recognition of the National Capital as the mecca of the Nation on the one day dedicated to the man of labor.

Every last detail for the success of the demonstration had been checked and all was declared in readiness last night by Sergt. A. J. Bargagni, of the District Fire Department, parade marshal and head of the affair each year.

"The parade by far will be the biggest and best of its kind we have ever staged here, and I have no hesitancy in saying that it will be a real attraction to the thousands that will view it," declared Sergt. Bargagni.

Six States to Be Represented.

"We estimated that more than 125,000 persons viewed the parade last year, and the number this year should exceed that figure. At this time it is absolutely impossible to say just how many will be in the

Coste Will Fly Ocean To New York at Dawn

Decision Made Suddenly; Weather Reports Are Highly Favorable.

Le Bourget, France, Aug. 31 (A.P.). Capt. Dieudonne Coste, France's most famous aviator, announced this afternoon he plans to take off at dawn on the great leap from Paris to New York.

With his aid, Maurice Bellonte, he landed his plane, the Question Mark, here at 5:50 p. m., coming from Villa Coublay.

The flier's decision came as a surprise, since the continued unfavorable weather outlook, and reports that Coste was not satisfied with the engine, had indicated to observers the flight would not take place this year.

For weeks and months he and Bellonte have tested their plane, both for altitude and speed. Coste had repeatedly said he would be hurried by no one, but would bide his time, and take off only when he had the best of weather.

The Meteorological Bureau predicted excellent atmospheric conditions, and Coste was confident of the ability of his plane. He planned to fly by way of the Great Circle, over

BALLOON RECOVERY THOUGHT POSSIBLE

Scientist Asserts Another Search of Isle Will Give Valuable Results.

Skjaer Island, Norway, Aug. 31 (A.P.).—The sealer Bratvaag, bearing the bodies of the three members of the Andree polar expedition of 1897, put into the harbor here at midnight (6 p. m., E. S. T.) instead of proceeding direct to Tromsoe as scheduled.

A ship with correspondents of the Associated Press and the Oslo newspaper Aftenposten aboard, which has been lying in a Norwegian port not far distant, was expected to arrive shortly to meet the Bratvaag.

Tromsoe, Norway, Aug. 31 (A.P.).—The sealer Bratvaag, which has aboard the bodies of three aeronauts who perished in the polar regions 33 years ago, nosed out of her hiding place in the Arctic fogs this afternoon and put in at Hasvick.

From here Dr. Gunnar Horn, who found the remnants of the first expedition made toward the North Pole in a balloon, was able to communicate by wire wth Tromsoe and sent the following message:

"I heard for the first time yesterday that I was ordered back. The bodies of Andree, Strindberg, and Frankel are well preserved. We are now heading toward Tromsoe."

Later a telegram was received from an official in Hasvick saying:

"The Bratvaag arrived at Hasvick at 2:30 p. m. She was met by several boats and cleared at 4:20 for Tromsoe, expecting to be there in 10 or 11 hours."

These brief but interesting messages are all that Norway thus far has received about this little ship, which for many days has been carrying in the polar wastes one of the greatest exploration epics of all time.

With word of the Bratvaag's return toward civilization there began a wild race for news and pictures such as journalism rarely has seen before. By airplane and ship reporters and photographers of many nations prepared to head out into the Arctic and meet the Bratvaag, each intent on being the first to obtain the great story of the Andree expedition's fate and of Dr. Horn's extraordinary discovery of the bodies and equipment buried in the ice of White Island.

Girl Flier Takes Off.

Among the journalistic adventurers was the famous Norwegian aviatrix, Gidsken Jacobsen, who left by plane this morning with her fiance, the Finnish flier, Peppainen. They left for Honningsvaag, whence they planned to fly farther in the hopes of meeting the Bratvaag. Perhaps unfortunately for them, they got away before the Bratvaag's whereabouts had been reported.

Two other airplanes were here with newspaper parties ready to take off when the ship drew near, and still more were expected. In addition, several sealers put out with news gatherers and cameramen

Several Swedish and Norwegian scientists were here tonight to take charge of the preservation of the bodies after they reach port. They are equipped with refrigerating equipment and may embalm the bodies here.

RELIGIOUS PRINCIPLE URGED FOR INDUSTRY

Ethics Fail as Capital and Labor Conduct Class War, Green Says.

THOUSANDS HEAR TALK

The application of religious principles to human relations in industry was outlined by William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, at the national labor Sunday service held at Washington Cathedral yesterday, with thousands of labor representatives present and still more thousands hearing the service and address over a Nation-wide broadcast through the Columbia Broadcasting Co. originating in the WMAL station here.

"This meeting," said Mr. Green, "sponsored by Bishop Freeman and held within the shadow of this beautiful, historic cathedral, will be interpreted by laboring men and women throughout the United States as more than a friendly and sympathetic gesture. It will be accepted as a definite expression of the deep and genuine interest which the Bishop of Washington and the members of this great church organization have in the moral, material and spiritual welfare of the masses of mankind."

Although absent from Washington, the Right Rev. James E. Freeman, Bishop of Washington, welcomed Mr Green and the representatives of labor in a printed foreword distributed to those in attendance expressing the belief that "the church must more and more relate itself intelligently and sympathetically to the large concerns of industry."

Asks Fair Distribution.

The service, which was held in the open air at the foot of the Peace Cross in Washington Cathedral Close, was conducted by the Rev. Dr. G. Freeland Peter, canon and chancellor of Washington Cathedral, assisted by other members of the cathedral staff of clergy. Special prayers for Labor Day were read and the choir of men and boys from Episcopal 30 Hurt When Frisco Train Leaves Track at Speed of 60 Miles an Hour.

FIRE ENVELOPS COACHES

St. Louis, Aug. 31 (A.P.).—Eleven persons were reported killed and 30 injured, many of them seriously, early tonight when the Texas Special of the St. Louis-San Francisco Railroad was derailed at Osage Hills, about 10 miles west of here.

The accident occurred about 500 feet east of the Osage Hills Station The train, which left St. Louis at 6:30 p. m. for Fort Worth, Dallas and San Antonio, Tex., was traveling about 60 miles and hour when the locomotive and three coaches leftthe rails and overturned. The other coaches left the rails, but did not overturn, reports indicated.

The known dead include Engineer Ernest T. White of Maplewood, Mo., his fireman, and five persons whose bodies were removed from the first coach. Four other bodies were caught in the debris of the second match.

Conductor Meador and Brakeman Wilkershane were seriously injured.

Another conductor and two porters, whose names were unavailable, were also reported seriously injured.

The three coaches immediately behind the engine, which followed it off the rails, were reported burning. There were approximately twelve coaches in the train.

Two of the coaches were completely demolished, the force of the derailment having torn two other coaches from their trucks. The track at the point of the wreck is eight feet higher than the tracks of the eastbound roadway, which adjoins.

Within an hour a crowd estimated at 10,000 persons had assembled near the wreck scene, St. Louis County officers reported. The officers took charge. Firemen from small towns near the wreck began removing the bodies of dead and the injured as

Cut in Mail Collections To Reduce Postal Costs

No Regularly Employed Person Laid Off in Postoffice Department's Economy Program, Postmaster General Brown Says; Employes Protest.

Postmaster General Brown has been quietly but steadily curtailing expenses in his department by limiting the postal service wherever he found it possible, collections have been cut in residential sections of Washington, Baltimore, Philadelphia and other large cities. Protests have been met with the explanation that no person regularly employed has been dropped from the pay rolls but places made vacant by deaths or resignations have not been filled.

Postal employes all over the country have appealed to members of Congress and labor leaders here. Five or six collections of mail were made daily in residential territory under the old regime in the Postoffice Department, but the new rule is three or four.

Mr. Brown was asked about the curtailment. He said he did not intend to put into effect any "ruthless economy program," but was effecting savings where it could be done without crippling the service.

"Not a single regular carrier or clerk has been dropped from the rolls and no such action is contemplated," said Mr. Brown. "But, where resignations or retirements have taken place, the vacancies thus created will be permitted to lapse."

Thomas H. Flaherty, secretary and treasurer of the National Federation of Postoffice Clerks, charges the Postmaster General with dodging facts. He explained that Mr. Brown could not "fire regulars" without cause as they are protected by law.

"It is not necessary," he said, "to explain to trade unionists that the other victim of the Andree expedition, arrived from Sweden today to represent their families. Mr. Strindberg said his people would not claim any of the things found on White Island except possibly those of a very private nature, such as letters. He added: "My brother was engaged when he flew in 1897 and his fiancee is still alive."

This is a point which has not been cleared up here before.

A grim little scene was enacted when three zinc-lined oaken chests arrived in the ice dock to receive the bodies of the men who have been sleeping in the ice for thirty-three years. A great crowd gathered, but watched in silence as is the custom of the northern seafarers, who are people of action and not words.

Frozen Records Are Problem

Scientists here expressed the hope that Andree's diary and log will still be legible. They say these frozen records present a great problem and they must experiment before learning if the written evidence can be reproduced.

Oslo, Norway, Aug. 31 (A.P.).—The sealer Bratvaag, carrying the bodies of the ill-fated Andree Arctic expedition of 33 years ago, reached Hasvick, on the Finmarken coast, west of Hammerfest, at 2 o'clock this afternoon (8 a. m. Eastern standard time).

It was believed the Bratvaag might reach Tromsoe, where preparations have been made to spread the story of the Andree expedition to the world, at about midnight (6 p. m. Eastern standard time).

Until word came that the little sealer had reached Hasvick, no one knew exactly where it was.

Stops Only Briefly.

The Bratvaag stopped at Hasvick only fifteen minutes to telegraph the authorities of her return. It was stated that Dr. Horn had not had time to make an official report of the discovery.

The Bratvaag saw none of the ships which were hunting her.

Early in the month the Bratvaag, carrying an exploration group headed by Dr. Gunnar Horn, discovered the bodies of Salomon August Andree and his companions on White Island, a little known region in the Arctic Seas. Dr. Horn sent word on the find back to civilization by Capt. Gustave Jensen, captain of the sealer Terningen, and the world was astounded at the solution of the 33-year-old mystery of the Arctic. It was in 1897 that Andree and two companions set out in the first balloon trip toward the North Pole, and the Arctic silence soon swallowed them.

Ship Goes On Sealing.

After sending back word of the discovery the Bratvaag calmly went about her business of gathering more seals. It was then that a race set in to bring the little vessel back to the paths of communication and thus obtain a complete story. Numerous messages were broadcast to the Bratvaag but it was not known if she received them, for she carried a radio receiving apparatus but no transmitting equipment.

The Spitzbergen scientific mission, backer of the Dr. Gunnar Horn expedition, which discovered the fate of the Andree polar expedition, today gave the Associated Press a letter from Dr. Horn telling of the discovery.

It was sent from the sealer Bratvaag, which carried the Horn expedition, through Capt. Gustave Jansen, of the sealer Terningen.

Tells of Fne Weather.

Part of the letter is private, but the remainder is as follows:

"East Victoria Island, 8-7.

"We have today met the Terningen of Tromsoe * * * and as it will surely reach home before us I am sending a short account of the expedition with this boat.

"We have had fine weather all the time from Tromsoe although there was little fog in the west. We went into Hopen and from there to Abel Island. We continued to Great Island, where we built a hut in the neighborhood of the depot established there by the Italians. From there we went to White Island.

"In its southwestern part it is quite bare and it is there that we found Andree's camp.

"The camp was first discovered by a company of our crew. Shortly afterward we arirved on the spot.

Information Sent Consul.

"I am sending all further information about the find to British Consul Saether, who will wire the message to the Spitzbergen office. We have sailed all the time in ice-free waters.

"We are now lying east of Victoria Island. All is well. I shall probably be back again by the beginning of September.

"With greetings.

"GUNNAR HORN."

Belief that Andree's balloon and other relics of his expdition will be found on White Island was expressed to the Associated Press here by Capt. Thorvald Grodahl, who arrived this morning in his ship Hanseat after a fruitless search for the long missing members of Nobile's Italia airship expedition to the North Pole.

Tin Can Was Found.

Grodahl was on White Island just before Horn had found a few remains of some expedition in the shape of a tin can, some paper and a tent fastening. However, he saw nothing of the bodies which Horn found shortly afterward, and, indeed, thoughts of Andree never entered his mind.

"This year it has been exceptionally easy to penetrate the Far North," he said. "There is no doubt that it will be possible to find more things when the snow melts."

Asked if he thought Andree and his companions lived a long time after their balloon was lost, Grodahl replied:

"I think they lived quite a while and that they froze to death just as they were found. I feel sure they slept themselves into death."

He added he thought it certain their balloon eventually would be found on White Island.

Three Bodies on Board.

Hammerfest, Norway, Aug. 31 (A.P.).—Dr. Gunnar Horn today cleared up the question of how many bodies of the Salamon August Andree polar expedition were aboard the sealer Bratvaag, telling the Associated Press he had the bodies of all three who made the 1897 expedition.

The interview was conducted by telephone between Hammerfest and Hasvick, where the Bratvaag touched en route to Tromsoe, and was the first statement Dr. Horn had made for the press about his sensational discovery on White Island.

"We have three bodies with us," he said, adding that Andree's body seemed well preserved.

Just Heard of Recall.

Dr. Horn said it was only last night that he had received a radio message ordering him home and it was difficult to make it out on his receiving set.

He was asked if he had met any of the newspaper expeditions out looking for him and replied:

"No, you are the first journalist to take a message from us."

Questioned whether he had brought everything he had found from the Andree expedition, Dr. Horn answered:

"Yes, and Andree's body seems very well preserved. Everything we found we placed on the afterdeck. The bodies are lying in cases with ice packed well about them."

Hard to Get Boat Out of Ice.

Dr. Horn said he had brought Andree's canvas boat, adding:

"It was hard work to get the boat out of the ice. We have done our very best to take good care of everything."

Asked if he thought it possible that the missing members of Gen. Umberto Nobile's "Italia" party might be found, Dr. Horn said:

"It seems to be quite improbable. The melting of ice this year has been very great and I think the Italia party has gone to the bottom of the sea as a result."

The explorer added a touch of humor by remarking that he had several live polar bears aboard the Bratvaag. "They are making a terrible spectacle," he said.

BAD JOHN WRIGHT, ONCE FEUDIST, DYING

Hill Hero Is Likely to Pass Without Knowing Son Is Shot to Death.

BECOMES LAW OFFICER

Whitesburg, Ky., Aug. 31 (A.P.).—"Bad John" Wright, former feudist who in later years was revered as an intrepid mountain peace officer, lay at the point of death today at his home in Wise County, Va., near the Kentucky border, unaware that his son, Sam, had met violent death yesterday in Pike County, Ky.

"Bad John" earned his sobriquet by killing more than 30 men while he served in various positions of authority in the border counties of Virginia and Kentucky. All his killings were "within the law," his friends hasten to tell casual questioners, safe in the knowledge that the events of the famed Wright-Jones feud of 40 years ago have long since been forgotten.

The famed border patrolman, whose age is variously estimated between 87 and 96 years, was an intimate friend of John Fox, jr., novelist, and furnished the author with much material for his books dealing with mountain life.

Not "Bad" Is Verdict.

"Devil Jack Tolliver," one of the characters in the Fox novel, "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine," was a prototype of John Wright.

However, Bad John's admirers hasten to add, "Bad John" wasn't like "Devil Jack."

"Bad John" wasn't really bad at all, they say, citing his record as an enforcer of the law, whereas Fox's famed character was depicted as a blood-thirsty two-gun man of the hills, who killed for the mere fun of it.

"Bad John" in later years became more familiarly known as "Uncle John" and had friends without number in Letcher and Pike Counties, Ky., and Wise County, Va., and other mountain sections who were learning today, as the news slowly spread that the courageous veteran of many a man hunt was on his death bed.

Has Held Many Offices.

Their hero was sometimes called, poetically, "The Tall Sycamore of the Elkhorn" because of his gigantic stature and his residence near Elkhorn Creek, one of the many mountain streams. Until several days ago, when he was stricken ill, "Bad John" was active as a deputy sheriff of Wise County. He had previously served as sheriff, deputy and justice of the peace.

Pikeville, Ky., Aug. 31 (A.P.).—Henry Branham, captured early today by Pike County officers, admitted killing his cousin, Melvin Branham, after Melvin had killed Sam Wright during a quarrel in front of the Wright home yesterday, Deputy Sheriff Harve Childers said. Childers declared Branham told him he fired to quell the disturbance and had no intention of hitting any one.

Branham told the officer he fired after Wright had fallen and while Charles Ray and Melvin Branham were throwing rocks and firing. Ray is being held in jail with Henry Branham pending investigation.

India Police Fire On Mob in Riot

Several Are Injured When Crowd Urges Workers at Mill to Withdraw.

Bombay, Aug. 31 (A.P.).—Police fired on a mob of riotous workers opposite the new City Bombay Mills today, injuring several. The disturbance started when a number of employes from other mills gathered at the New City Mills, which have been working, and urged the operatives to cease work. When they refused the crowd pelted the mill with stones and the management appealed to the police for protection.

The police first charged the crowd with laths and then opened fire, quelling a disturbance. A mass meeting of congress volunteers and sympathizers on the Esplanade Maidan to salute the Nationalist flag passed without incident. The demonstrators kept within the limits drawn by the police.

Word came from Calcutta today that F. J. Lowman, acting inspector general of police, died as the result of shots fired by a Bengali youth at Dacca Friday. E. Hodson, superintendent of police, was seriously wounded at the same time and is in Mitford Hospital.

Boyd Primes Columbia For Sea Hop to London

Toronto, Aug. 31 (A.P.).—Capt. Erroll Boyd, who is planning a transatlantic flight "within the next few days," spent the day here after a flight last night from Montreal in which he tested special navigating instruments on his famous monoplane Columbia.

He had planned to return to Montreal today, but decided to postpone his departure until tomorrow morning. On his arrival back in Montreal his plane will be given a final check in preparation for the ocean hop to London. Then he is expected to wait for favorable weather conditions before making the attempt.

Injured Man, Arrested, Is Taken to Gallinger

Vernon Sanders, 27 years old, who told police that he had no fixed address in Washington, was arrested by Private C. L. Hayden, of the Ninth Precinct, early yesterday morning, charged with being drunk and disorderly on the street.

When arrested on K street near Second street northeast, it was found that the man had several lacerations about the face and scalp which he claimed to be unable to explain, according to the officer. He was removed to Gallinger Hospital for treatment. His condition was not thought to be serious.

FIRE-SWEPT OFICES TO BE MOVED TODAY

Building Probably Yill Not Be Replaced, Grant Says After Inspection.

ORIGIN STILL MYSTERY

The Federal Trade Commission offices and the quarters of two Department of Labor bureaus which were flooded in Saturday's fire, will be housed in temporary building No. 5, on C street, betwen Twenty-first and Twenty-second streets.

After a survey of the ruins of the flimsy structure, Lieut. Col. U. S. Grant 3d announced that it is unlikely that any attempt will be made to restore the building.

Laborers will begin today to move all office equipment of the Women's Bureau and the Children's Bureau to the new quarters. While these two bureaus will be permanently housed in No. 5, it is planned to move the Federal Trade Commission offices to the Washington Building at Fifteenth street and New York avenue, in a short time.

All of the firemen who were injured or overcome by smoke during the blaze have been released from the Emergency Hospital. In all, 27 fire fighters were hurt. Of this number six were held at the hospital overnight.

No definite cause for the fire has been established. Superficial investigation of the origin of the fire has been made, but Capt. Ray C. Montgomery, head of the U. S. Park Police, and H. R. Owens, assistant chief of the buildings division of the Department of Public Buildings and Public Parks, have not made any definite decision as to its cause or the place of origin.

On Tuesday, Mr. Owens and Capt. Montgomery will question employes. They are inclined to believe that the seat of the fire was in a clothes room in the New York avenue end of the building.

There is no reason to believe, Capt. Montgomery says, that the fire started from defective wiring or spontaneous combustion. All the wiring in the place had been inspected the day before and no combustible material was stored in the place.

The theory that holds the strongest in the mind of Mr. Owens and Capt. Montgomery is that a careless smoker discarded a lighted match or a cigarette in the clothes room before leaving the building at 1 o'clock.

In all probability, Lieut. Col. Grant says, the building will be abandoned. The west wing of the building may be repaired temporarily to protect records until they are removed to new quarters. It cost $380,000 to erect the building in war time. It is estimated that it would take $150,000 to repair it.

Few valuable records are believed to have been lost, according to Federal Trade Commission officials. Edgar A. McCulloch, a member of the commission, said that if any testimony taken in the various investigations was lost it probably could be replaced by the firm which holds the contract for recording testimony at commission inquiries.

Otis B. Johnson, commission secretary, said that almost all records taken in the power and chain store investigations had been saved. He said the greatest loss was in office equipment.

EXTORTIONISTS SEEN IN WOMAN BURNING

Wife Seared by Acid and Set Afire Had Been Recipient of Threats by Mail.

SHERIFF RELATES STORY

Reed City, Ill., Aug. 31 (A.P.).—Mrs. Tranquita Rinaldo, 32, blinded with acid and then burned to death last night by an unidentified assailant and who escaped, is believed by police to have been a victim of extortionists.

The woman was able to give only a meager description of her assailant before she died. The man, who she said was about 40 years old, sprang out at her from a clump of bushes as she walked along a lonely road near her farm home here, and discharged acid from a squirt gun into her eyes. As she groped about blinded and screaming with pain, she said, he knocked her to the ground. An inflammable fluid was thrown over her clothing and ignited. Before lapsing into unconsciousness, she said, she saw her assailant flee toward a nearby woods.

The woman was found by her husband and young son who had become alarmed at her failure to return home from a neighbor's and had started a search for her. She died shortly after being taken to a hospital.

Sheriff Ernest Fleming, who advanced the extortionist theory, said the Rinaldos, thrifty farmers, had received a number of threatening letters demanding money.

"The couple came to me with the first of a series of extortion letters a year ago," he said. "About six months ago they received another letter commanding them to deliver the money at night at a lonely spot near Pekin. The Rinaldos waited there for hours while myself and three deputies hid in the vicinity, but no one appeared. Since then they reported three men had appeared at their truck farm threatening to kill first Mrs. Rinaldo and then her children and husband if they failed to deliver the money. We have no clews toward their identities."

A force of deputies from the sheriff's office searched about the scene of the attack today for trace of the slayer.

Strong Temblor Rocks Capital City of Peru

Lima, Peru, Aug. 31 (A.P.).—A strong earth shock at 8:30 o'clock this morning added to the excitement caused by the recent change of government.

The tremor lasted about 15 seconds and many inhabitants fled to open places in panic. There was no damage.

10,000,000 Women in U. S. Engage in Gainful Tasks

W. M. Steuart, Census Director, Finds That by Adding Those Doing Housework, 90 Per Cent of 37,000,000 Are Employed in Some Way.

(Associated Press.)

William M. Steuart, Director of the Census, estimated yesterday that 10,000,000 women in the United States are engaged in gainful occupations.

Discussing the 1930 population enumeration in a radio address over the Columbia Broadcasting System, Dr. Steuart said half of the women were producing tangible goods while the other half were engaged in service occupations of various kinds.

"Women are now engaging more actively in industry, trade and office work," he added, "than ever before in the history of the country."

The census director also estimated that the total population of 122,000,000 is "mainly supported, so far as breadwinning is concerned," by about 47,000,000 persons working about three-fourths of the time.

The number of persons between 16 and 64 was placed at 38,000,000 men and 37,000,000 women, and Dr. Steuart said 90 per cent of the men and 25 per cent of the women were gainfully employed.

He gave the number of women engaged in housekeeping as 23,000,000 with most of them doing the major part of this work. Including the housekeepers, the director said about 90 per cent of the women could be classified as employed.

The number of persons 65 or over was placed at 5,500,000 with 3,000,000 of them over 70. Dr. Steuart said it was probable that 2,000,000 of the former were "actively at work competing with the young and more vigorous."

One million persons were said to be in public or private institutions supported in whole or in part by Federal, State or local governments. Patients in general hospitals for the sick and injured were estimated at 250,000, mental patients in Federal and State hospitals at 265,000 and Federal and State prisoners at 125,000.

Dr. Steuart said those employed did not work more than 275 days a year on an average. He attributed this to vacations, sickness and part-time work. He commented that probably "under present normal industrial and business conditions there are not more than 40,000,000 or 42,000,000 people in this country who, on a given day, are at work full time on a gainful occupation."

TARIFF COMMISSION WORK FACES HOOVER

Four More Members Are to Be Chosen in Two and One-Half Weeks.

PRESIDENT TAKES REST

Luray, Va., Aug. 31 (A.P.).—One of the most imminent problems awaiting President Hoover when he returns to the Capital late tomorrow is that of completing the reorganization of the new Tariff Commission.

Only two and a half weeks remain before the present commission expires and four more members must be chosen. Henry P. Fletcher, Republican, and veteran diplomat, and Thomas Walker Page, economic authority and Democrat, are the only commissioners selected thus far.

The Chief Executive has made it a custom to take governmental questions to the quiet of his lodge near here on the Rapidan River for consideration, and sometimes the thing he has most in mind is indicated by the party personnel. He spent this week-end in studying ways of speeding up the Government's building program and there was nothing to indicate that the Tariff Commission was touched upon.

Goes to Baltimore Tuesday

While the task of completing the make-up of the tariff body is a pressing one, the President is not expected to get much work done before the middle of the week. The better part of Labor Day will be spent at camp.

On Tuesday he will motor to Baltimore to review the parade of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, returning to Washington the same day for dinner.

After conferences yesterday which resulted in the decision to accelerate the construction program to help relieve unemployment, the President rested at his lodge today.

Most of his guests did likewise.

Three Ride 17 Miles.

Lawrence Richey, the President's secretary; Perry K. Heath, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, and Delano Large, 16-year-old nephew of Mrs. Hoover, took a 17-mile drive over the mountains on horseback to a resort on a plateau near the top of Stony Man Mountain, a 4,000-foot peak in the Blue Ridge.

The three riders found it rough going, however, and had a White House car meet them at Luray, at the foot of Stony Man, to take them back to camp. Marines were sent over for the horses.

Newspaper correspondents met the camp party at Crescent Cork. The two groups then rode through White Oak Canyon. Richey and his companions had dinner at the resort and afterward rode to the summit of Stony Man to get a view of the great valley below.

Three Girls Flee House of Mercy

Inmates, All Virginians, Get Out Window While Attendants Rest.

Three young white girls who were inmates of the House of Mercy, an Episcopal home for girls at Klingle and Adams Mill roads northwest, succeeded in making an escape through a first-floor window of the institution early yesterday afternoon. The girls, Bertha Davis, Thelma Norfleet, 17 years old, and another young girl said to be 15 years old, made their escape while attendants were resting after dinner.

Deaconess Yeo, in charge of the institution, told police that none of the girls lived in the District, all of them being from Virginia, and that, so far as she knew, none had friends in the city.

They were said to have been wearing blue cotton dresses with white collars, the institutional uniform, when they made their get away.

Hundreds Brave Heat; See Post Model Home

The return of hot weather failed to check visitation to The Washington Post model home yesterday, hundreds of persons going through its beautiful, tastefully furnished rooms and admiring its handsome exterior throughout the day and evening. The home is at 1606 Forty-fourth street northwest, in Foxhall Village, residential development of Boss & Phelps, builders and owners of the model home.

The home, which will be open daily from 9 a. m. to 9 p. m., is reached from Dupont Circle by driving west on Q street to Wisconsin avenue, north one square to Reservoir road and west to Foxhall Village. A south turn is made at Forty-fourth street to the home.

Auto Thought Used In Holdup Is Found

The automobile which police think may have been used in the holdup of the Avalon Theater, 5612 Connecticut avenue, on Thursday night was recovered early yesterday at Nebraska and Wisconsin avenues.

Walker S. Buel, correspondent of the Cleveland Plain Dealer, is the owner of the machine, which was stolen from a parking space a block from the theater an hour before bandits took $265 from the theater manager. Buel told police that only a pair of sun glasses was missing from the car.

Dog Charges Preferred After Boy Is Bitten

Failure to procure a muzzle and license for his dog were charged yesterday against Ernest Blewer, of 6211 Fifth street northwest, after a small dog, allegedly owned by him, had bitten 5-year-old Robert Schwing on the right leg. The boy was taken to his home at 6221 Eighth street northwest after receiving treatment from Dr. Loretta Kress.

Blewer posted $10 collateral at the Thirteenth Precinct.

Pittsburgh Man Hurt in Crash.

As a result of a collision of two automobiles on the Rockville pike early yesterday morning, Charles Groome, 35 years old, of Pittsburgh, Pa., was treated for brush burns about his face and hands by attendants at Emergency Hospital. His condition was not thought to be serious, and he was later taken to the home of friends in Washington.

Boy, 14, Missing From Home.

Police have been asked to look for James Irvin Andrews, 14 years old, of 822 Fourth street northwest, who is said to have been missing since the morning of August 28. His mother, Mrs. Etta V. Andrews, described him as having worn a white shirt and dark pants when he left home, and to have a dark complexion.

ALLEN'S BODY WAITS REMOVAL TO CAPITAL

Commander of U. S. Army in Germany to Be Buried in Washington.

DEATH CAME SUDDENLY

Waynesboro, Pa., Aug. 31 (A.P.).—His carrer ended by a heart attack at a summer cottage near here, the body of Maj. Gen. Henry T. Allen, 71, commander of the American Army of Occupation in Germany, lay in an undertaking parlor today awaiting removal to Washington for burial.

The major general, calling with his wife on Saturday upon Dr. Rudolph Leitner, first secretary of the German Embassy at Washington, stood for a while admiring the view from the Leitner summer cottage at Buena Vista, Pa., seven miles from here. Suddenly he turned pale and before others in the party could hasten to his aid, he fell from the veranda, plunging down a 15-foot bluff before the cottage.

Dr. H. C. Bridges, of Blue Ridge Summit, called to attend the stricken officer, said death had been caused by a blood clot on the heart and that Gen. Allen undoubtedly was dead before he fell from the porch.

Gen. Allen retired seven years ago, making his residence then in Washington and devoting much of his time to writing of his military adventures. His name was not known alone for his work on the Rhine, however, although his extreme authority there caused him to be known as "King." Drawing upon his experiences as military attache at Berlin and St. Petersburg, he successfully urged organization of the Army general staff in the United States. Turning from war to peace, he organized the American Committee for Relief of German Children; while one of his early accomplishments was organization of the Philippine constabulary.

Col. Easby-Smith Escapes in Crash

Three Others Are Injured in Another Accident in Maryland.

A car owned and operated by Col. James S. Easby-Smith, prominent Washington lawyer and sportsman, hurtled from the Marlboro pike at Strawberry Hill curve, about a mile from Marlboro yesterday morning when a tire blew out. The car jumped a 5-foot culvert and came to a stop in the cornfield of Lewis Moran. The automobile was demolished, but Col. Smith and his family suffered no injuries other than a good shaking up and fright. They had been on ntheir way to the Marlboro Fair Grounds, where the colonel has several horses. Deputy Sheriff Harry Morris aided the family in returning home.

Two persons were injured yesterday in a double accident near Hill's bridge on the Crain Highway, in Anne Arundel County, Md. Mrs. Victoriana Hargis, passenger in a car driven by her husband, Andrew Jackson Hargis, 2610 F street northwest, was injured when the car was in collision with another car driven by George William Corcoran, 809 Kentucky avenue southeast. Mrs. Hargis' back was wrenched. She refused hospital treatment.

While the car of Mr. Corcoran was parked on the side of the road awaiting State Policeman W. T. Booker's arrival on the scene, a car driven by W. E. Smithson, 3924 Fourth street southeast, crashed into the rear of the automobile. Miss Ethel G. Nash, a passenger in the Smithson car, was injured. She was treated by Dr. Elliott B. Campbell, 3109 Sixteenth street northwest, for lacerations and bruises on the body.

soon as they arrived on the scene. Four of the bodies were taken to an undertaking establishment at Kirkwood, in St. Louis county.

The locomotive, after leaving the fails, ran into a bank, against which it came to a stop. Examination of the switch, over which the train passed before being derailed, showed it to be in operating condition, disproving the original theory that a split switch had caused the accident.

Doctors and nurses from the Frisco Hospital as well as physicians and nurses from other institutions were rushed to the scene in ambulances.

The place where the derailment occurred is a "cut" in the side of rising ground.

Socialist Unemployed In Hungary Warned

Budapest, Aug. 31 (A.P.).—The authorities have warned Socialist workmen planning an unemployment demonstration throughout Hungary tomorrow that they will be dispersed by armed force if they are found walking on the sidewalks.

About 150,000 workmen are scheduled to take part in a peaceable demonstration, complaining that Portugal, Turkey and Hungary are the only countries in Europe that provide neither doles nor sick benefits.

mistaken for sightseers, and thereby have their civic pride hurt.

The "soliciting" consists sometimes, police said, of taking a prospect by the arm, and making up his mind for him that he should pay a dollar and see the sights. Such actions are against the law, and the campaign was made in the interests of a more decorous atmosphere in and about the White House.

Princess and Baby Doing Well.

Action of Brother Reversed by Court

Kin Sues Kin for Damages Resulting From Automobile Accident.

Atlanta, Aug. 31 (A.P.).—A damage suit of brother against brother, involving an automobile accident, has been reversed by the Georgia Court of Appeals. E. T. Mathis and his wife, of Americus, losing a $7,500 verdict for damages granted against T. H. Mathis by a lower court.

According to the record in the case, E. T. Mathis borrowed T. H. Mathis' automobile to attend a football game here on December 3, 1927. While driving the machine over a wet road the automobile plunged down a 30-foot embankment when a brake band stuck.

Damages were sought by E. T. Mathis and his wife, who was in the car at the time, against his brother, T. H. Mathis, on the ground that the latter knew the brake band was faulty when he loaned the car.

12,000 in Austria Army Refuse Socialist Dinner

Vienna, Aug. 31 (A.P.).—Twelve thousand Austrian soldiers, through their spokesmen, have refused the invitation to dinner issued by the Socialist City of Vienna.

They declined because of what they regard as the inhospitable taunts of the Socialist press, which remarked sarcastically about their eating the war minister's hot sausages after mass. The dinner would have taken place at the end of the autumn maneuvers, now in progress.

PERU ENVOY TO U.S. TO CONTINUE IN POST

Calderon, Writer, Is Named New Minister to France in Service Shake-Up.

LEGUIA IN POOR HEALTH

Lima, Peru, Aug. 31 (A.P.).—Peru's new military government, beginning its second week under Lieut. Col. Luis M. Sanchez Cerro, today began making over the Peruvian diplomatic service.

The government announced it was quite satisfied with the services of Manuel Freyre y Santander, Peruvian Ambassador at Washington, and would retain him in that post.

But the Minister to France, Mariano Cornejo, was less fortunate. He was ordered to deliver the legation to the secretary and then come to Lima for investigation into his conduct. Francisco Garcia Calderon, noted writer and philosopher, will succeed Cornejo.

Changes in Diplomatic Set.

Eleodoro Romero will remain as Ambassador to the Holy See. The government accepted the resignations of the Minister to Spain, Eduardo Leguia, brother of the deposed president; Alejandro Puente, Minister to Great Britain; Cesar Canevaro, Minister at Vienna, and Guillermo Swayne Mendoza, another relative of Leguia, Minister at Brussels.

The consular service also will be changed, with Maj. Alfredo Henriod appointed consul general at New York to succeed Dimetrio Correa Olavegoya, who has been appointed consul general at Hamburg instead of Rodolfo Rixrath. Ismael Escurra will go to Paris as consul general, succeeding Carlos Valverde, dismissed.

In the domestic field Fernando Gazzani was appointed legal adviser to the foreign office. Enrique Carrilo, a writer, was named undersecretary ad interim.

Meanwhile, Augusto B Leguia, the former president, and his son, remained aboard the Almirante Grou in Callao Harbor. Local newspapers were informed by their Callao correspondents Saturday that Augosta B. Leguia, former president, and his son had been transferred to the political prison on San Lorenyo Island, but it was later learned that Leguia was not moved because of the state of his health. Dr. McCormack, an American physician, signed a certificate saying that he should not be transferred at present.

It was reliably learned today that the junta is negotiating with the Reserve Bank of Peru for an internal loan of fifteen million sols (about $6,000,000) in order to meet immediate obligations. Local banks are reported backing the junta's request.

PRESIDENT IS BOOED AT ARGENTINE SHOW

Buenos Aires Demonstration Causes Postponement of Cattle Exhibition.

IRIGOYEN GUARD STRONG

Buenos Aires, Aug. 31 (A.P.).—A demonstration at the cattle exposition this afternoon against Juan Fleitas, minister of agriculture, and President Irigoyen caused the minister to leave the building and the postponement of the exhibition.

As Fleitas entered the building to open the first program a crowd outside shouted "Down with the government," and those inside began booing and whistling when the minister attempted to speak. It continued as long as he stood on the platform and finally he was forced to leave the hall, escorted by firemen.

Meanwhile, anti-Irigoyen pamphlets were distributed through the crowd. They were signed by the "Legion de Mayo" (May 25 is the Argentine independence day).

This is an organization formed by a discontented faction including Videla Dorna, whose recent election as a deputy was not recognized by the government.

Meanwhile, the government continued strong military guard about the Presidential Palace and in other strategic locations, following the reported unrest of last week, and made plans for the opening of congress this week.

Under the revision of credentials it is understood the chamber will have 99 Irigoyenist deputies and 53 in the opposition, including 25 Conservatives, 14 Independent Socialists, 8 anti-Irigoyenists and 6 of other groups.

The Senate will have seven Irigoyenists, 18 direct oppositionists and five others.

MIDWEST AVIATORS TAKE RACE HONORS

St. Louis Man Is First in Free-for-All at Chicago; 40,000 Present.

LANDING TRY IS PERFECT

Curtiss Reynolds Airport, Chicago, Aug. 31 (A.P.).—New aerial stars from the Middle West carried off major honors at the national air races today.

Ben O. Howard, of St. Louis, piloted his tiny special plane to his fifth consecutive victory in the men's free-for-all, featured event of the "All Nations Day" program, and Verne Roberts, of Moline, Ill., another consistent winner, captured the cabin race for planes of 800-cubic inch piston displacement or less.

Howard negotiated the 25-mile course at an average speed of 154.83 miles per hour. William Ong, of Wichita, Kans., was second in the free-for-all, and E. V. Newson, of Little Rock, Ark., third.

Roberts averaged 145.58 miles an hour to win the cabin ship race. J. H. Livingston, of Aurora, Ill., was not far behind him for second place, averaging 145.40 miles. R. T. Quimby, of Moline, Ill., was third.

Chicagoan First in Rescue.

Arthur Caperton, of Chicago, piloting a Sikorsky S-38, won the amphibian rescue race. R. B. Cast, of Cary, Ill., in a Sikorsky, was second.

Pilots were required to take off at the field, fly to Lake Michigan to "rescue" cork dummies and return. Back to the field, they had to land their planes, jump out of them and run with the dummies to the announcer's stand.

To demonstrate the value of truth in advertising, race officials handicapped the planes according to the top speeds advertised by the manufacturers.

A. O. Johnson, of Chicago, nearly lost the Savoia Marchetti he was piloting when he leaned out of the ship too far to pick up his dummy. Water slipped into the hold and the plane started toward the bottom of the lake. It was rescued by a Coast Guard boat and towed, undamaged, to a Chicago ramp.

Dead Stick Landing Perfect.

The holiday crowd of 40,000 was favored with the best dead stick landing exhibitions of any day since the meet began. A dead stick landing is a landing with a dead motor without brakes.

Lieut. W. A. Martz, of Cincinnati, set his plane squarely on the goal peg for a mark that can be tied, but never bettered, and for the first time of the meet the women dead stick landers came closer than 100 feet to the goal. Betty Lund, of Troy, Ohio, stopped only 6 feet 6 inches away. Ruth Nichols, of New York, who landed 54 feet 10 inches from the goal, was second, and Nancy Hopkins, of Garden City, Long Island, New York, was third at 98 feet 6 inches.

Capt. Wolfgang von Gronau and his transatlantic fliers were again guests of the meet, and the German flag was hoisted up alongside the American banner in their honor.

Marines Escort Plane.

Their flying boat, docked at the Great Lakes Naval Station, was escorted to the airport by a squadron of marine planes.

After circling the field, they returned to the Great Lakes dock—the Dornier whale can now be set down on land—and, were brought back to the airport in another plane.

Maj. John A. Macready, who yesterday cracked up the speedy ship in which he intended to race in the 100-mile Thompson trophy race tomorrow was reported out of danger at an Evanston hospital today. He suffered a fractured nose, fractured shoulder and bruises about the head and body. An X-ray disclosed there were no internal injuries.

Italian Colonel First in Air Race

English Airwoman Takes Fourth Place in Aviation Tilt.

Rome, Aug. 31 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Col. Sacchi, an Italian, won the last stage and first prize in the round-Italy tourist race today. He reached Littorio Airport here in record time, flying a 140-horsepower Breda monoplane.

Closely following Col. Sacchi came Winifred Spooner, British airwoman, in a Haviland moth. The German flier, Lusser, came in third aboard an 80-horsepower Klemm tourist plane.

Deducting penalties, the general classification gives the Italian Donati second prize, Lusser third, and Miss Spooner fourth. The course, 3,500 kilometers over territory including the highest of the Italian Alps, was divided into four stages. Enthusiasm was naturally greatest for the Italian winners, but there was also an ovation for Miss Spooner and Egidia Fumagalli, first Italian woman to compete in any air race, and the only other woman competitor.

substitute who is forced out is just as much out of a job as an older man would be if he were dropped."

Mail collections from boxes in the residential sections of Washington have been cut two to three daily.

Only carriers now are used for collections, saving the cost of operating trucks. This necessitated employing ten or fifteen additional carriers, recruited from those who formerly worked on the trucks. Each has had his route cut to enable him to make the collections earlier.

There has been no cut in salaries, it was said. Mail collection in the business district has not been affected. The new plan was started after a thorough check, the department said.

Roommate Has Alibi For Alleged Assailant

Lewisboro, N. Y., Aug. 31 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Albert Palmgren, also known as Claude Scott, Armonk laborer, alleged to have attacked Miss Ida Engberg in Katonah Monday night, was arraigned before Justice of the Peace Martin Silkan in Lewisboro yesterday and held for the grand jury charged with first degree assault. He pleaded not guilty.

Police have learned that Palmgren's roommate has come forward with an alibi, asserting he and Palmgren were together Monday night and met no girl. The landlady of the rooming house in which the young men live is reported to have said she saw them both return home Monday night.

FIREMEN PREPARED FOR PARADE TODAY

Huge Throngs Crowd City to See Largest Procession Yet Scheduled.

MANY BANDS INCLUDED

line of march. We are positive that there will be volunteer fire companies from as many as six States, one more State than were represented in 1929. They are Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia, Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Delaware.

"The companies participating last year and in other years will return with augmented forces in many instances and the competition for honors will be exceptionally keen. There will be features not included in our former parades. All in all, we expect it to eclipse in importance and size anything we have ever attempted before in these Labor Day parades."

Up Pennsylvania avenue, beginning at Peace Monument, phalanx after phalanx of marching men, garbed for the most part in their vivid red suits, will swing to the accompaniment of almost as many musical outfits, including the Marine and Navy Bands, firemen's bands, firemen's fife and drum corps, private musical aggregations and other units.

Navy Band First.

At the head of the long line, a police motorcycle escort will precede the Navy Band and Sergt. Bargagni as parade marshal. Then will come the three District Commissioners, including Dr. Luther B. Reichelderfer, Maj. Gen. Herbert B. Crosby and Maj. J. C. Gotwals. Odell S. Smith and Rudolph Jose, chairman and vice chairman, respectively, of the citizens committee, will occupy the following automobile.

Next in line will come Gov. Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland and Gov. John Garland Pollard of Virginia, the two honor guests of the occasion, who figuratively head the delegations of volunteer fire companies from their respective States. Behind them will follow members of the federations of citizens associations.

One of the novelties in the line of march will be a moving pageant depicting the evolution of the fire department. There will be the hand-drawn pumper, and then Barney, Gene and Tom, last surviving fire horses at Blue Plains of the array that dashed through the city to blazes in the years before the modern pumpers, an example of which will be seen. Finally will come an airplane.

Marshal's Daughter Hostess.

The United States Marine Band will herald the advent of Miss Mildred Bargagni, daughter of the parade marshal, as hostess to the volunteer firemen.

With musical groups interspersed, the procession in order will include volunteer companies from Maryland and Virginia, the fraternal organizations and companies from West Virginia, Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Delaware. Next will come business and civic organizations.

Scattered through the marchers and machines will be at least 40 Fire Department floats, 18 comic and 25 civic and business floats, aside from 100 or more riotously funny clowns and mirth-provokers.

Proceeding up the Avenue, they will pass a reviewing stand close to The Washington Post Building, where 95 judges will select the winners for 51 trophies to be awarded for various accomplishments. These will go to the volunteer company with the largest number of men in the line, both with and without bands; the best pieces of apparatus; the most antiquated apparatus; the most attractive ladies' auxiliary; the best comedy group; the best band; and the best drum corps, among others.

Two and One-Half Hours Long.

It was estimated last night that the parade will require approximately 2½ hours to pass a given point, with 2 o'clock set as a tentative time for the dissolution of the end units of the procession at the Ellipse.

Promptly at 4 o'clock, the Ellipse will be the scene of an annual competition of the bands and fife and drum corps which participated in the parade, with various awards to be made.

Throughout the time of the parade, and for a short time preceding the event, special traffic regulations will prevail along Pennsylvania avenue and connecting street in conformity with an order made by Maj. Henry G. Pratt, superintendent of police.

Breaking the usual Labor Day custom, the annual baseball game between the firemen and policemen will not be played until next Saturday afternoon at Griffith Stadium, with the proceeds to be split between the relief organizations of the two forces.

Letter Confirms Unrest in Brazil

Important Political Events in Rio Grande do Sul Are Predicted.

Montevideo, Uruguay, Aug. 31 (A.P.).—A dispatch air mailed from Porto Alegre last Wednesday and received by the newspaper La Manana today said great unrest prevailed in the Brazilian state of Rio Grande do Sul, with important political events expected and possibly a revolutionary outbreak.

The correspondent said the leader of the discontended faction was Dr. Osvaldo Aranha, a former minister, who resigned when the president of Rio Grande do Sul was defeated for the national presidency by Dr. Julio Prestes in a recent election. He said the outbreak of rebellion had so far been prevented by Borges de Medeiros, leader of the Republican party in the state.

Dispatches received from Montevideo last week said that revolt was threatening in Rio Grande do Sul, but the government at Rio de Janeiro denied there was any danger.

Youth Slain and Tossed Into Lake Is Identified

Evanston, Ill., Aug. 31 (A.P.).—The body of a youth, who apparently had been clubbed to death and thrown into Lake Michigan, off the Northwestern University Campus, was recovered today and identified as that of Herbert Tews, 18, of Chicago, a printing pressman apprentice.

Identification was made by Arthur Tews, father of the victim, who said his son became involved in a labor dispute and had been threatened by men reputed to be labor organization sluggers. Three men were being sought.

WILL PRESIDE

REV. ALPHONSE M. SCHWITTALLA, dean of St. Louis University School of Medicine and president of the Catholic Hospital Association of the United States and Canada, which opens a four-day annual convention here tomorrow morning at Catholic University.

FOREIGN WAR DEAD HONORED BY ORDER

Memorial Services Held in Baltimore as First of 20,000 Men Arrive.

SESSIONS START TODAY

Baltimore, Md., Aug. 31 (A.P.).—Comrades who fell on battlefields in distant places were remembered here today by buddies who came back as the Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States convened their annual encampment with a memorial service for the dead. More than 20,000 veterans who faced death in China, Cuba, the Philippines, Mexico and France, and who represent every State and the territorial possessions, have turned their faces to Baltimore for the reunion that will continue until Friday.

From early day until after nightfall it was one parade after another, as delegations marched to hotels to the strains of old airs that in the years past carried men into action. Clean, bright uniforms they wore, in contrast to the khaki of service days.

Teh ranks of some delegations were thin, but most every outfit had its band and many carried flags.

Convening with the veterans is the Eighth Army Corps Veterans Association, the National Order of the Cootie and the Auxiliary of the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Business sessions begin tomorrow, to be persided over by Hezekiah N. Duff, of Lansing, Mich., national commander in chief.

Tuesday the veterans, in annual parade, will pass in review before President Hoover, who will come to Baltimore for th eoccasion. President Hoover was in China during the Boxer disturbances and saw in action some of the troops that will pass before him.

Included in the first group of delegations to arrive were Rhode Island, New York, Ohio, Michigan, Missouri, Wisconsin, Virginia, West Virginia and New Jersey.

COSTE PLANS HOP TO U. S. AT DAWN

southwestern England, and over Ireland from east to west.

Never has Coste on the eve of departure on any of his spectacular, dangerous air raids appeared so confident. He seemed in the most perfect physical condition, and was well-tanned from a week's fishing trip in the country taken while mechanics were putting the finishing touches on the engine at Villa Coublay.

Ten Die In Last Ten Days.

It was the opinion of the many pilots gathered at Le Bourget that Coste would need not only physical strength but great moral courage to attempt a transatlantic flight at this time—just as within the last ten days ten military airmen have fallen to death.

The flight at this moment, however, may have been planned to vindicate French official aviation, which has been thoroughly criticized for inefficiency and carelessness following the deaths.

Some also believed reports of the imminent departure of the German twelve-engine DO-X had something to do with Coste's decision.

Weather Is Favorable.

New York, Aug. 31 (A.P.).—Dr. James H. Kimball, Government meteorologist, who has been called the "unofficial starter of transatlantic flights," tonight said that Capt. Dieudonne Coste on his projected ocean hop would have favorable weather conditions which should make for "a fast and successful flight."

Assuming the famous French aviator would follow the great circle course, Dr. Kimball said he would have considerable wind assistance from the time of his takeoff until more than half way over. The weather will be cloudy, but not too cold, thus obviating the danger of ice forming on the wings, which is the bane of ocean flights. Near the American coast the weather will be clearer.

The general weather conditions, Dr. Kimball said, afford one of the first real opportunities this summer for such a flight from Paris.

Dawes Sees Sights Of Ancient Seville

Ambassador to Lunch Today With Prince of Orleans and His Wife.

Seville, Spain, Aug. 31 (A.P.).—Ambassador Charles G. Dawes, who is exploring the traces of ancient man in Spain, turned today from the study of paleolithic man to the picturesque sites of the Andelusian capital.

He inspected the Seville Cathedral, including what Spaniards say is the authentic tomb of Columbus and the Giralda, a cathedral tower constructed by the Moors when Andalusia was the center of Moorish culture.

Tomorrow Prince Alfonso of Orleans, cousin of the king, and his wife, Princess Beatrice, will come to to Seville for lunch with Mr. Dawes. Then the American Ambassador to Great Britain will leave for Paris.

COUNTY CALM UNDER POLITICAL PRESSURE

Democrats and Republicans in Prince Georges Fail to Grow Excited.

MANY PARTY CONTESTS

State's attorney, would fetch him more crabs.

A short distance away, at a little makeshift table, was another group. This also was a two-party gathering. Rubbing elbows were S. Gardner Cole, erstwhile Republican boss, and William F. Keys, an influential Democrat. They and the others were playing little casino, or something.

Leaders of Democrats.

That's the way it is in Prince Georges. Stand up for your party, of course, but don't be a boor about it. And always remember that the other fellow, regardless of his politics, is a human being. However, do your best to keep him out of public office.

The leaders of the regular Democratic organization, which now controls the county, are Enos Ray, of Chillum; M. Hampton Magruder, of Upper Marlboro, and L. G. Sasscer, of Upper Marlboro, who became a State senator at 28 and who now is seeking reelection. The chairman of the State central committee in charge of the county is George M. Palmer.

The organization has put forward a complete slate of candidates, and is confident that it will be approved by the voters. Here and there, however, have sprung up candidates to oppose some of the candidates of the organization. But this opposition is not organized as is that of the anti-Lee faction in Montgomery County.

Out for Old Office.

No one of the opposition candidates is regarded as a leader, but the best known one among them, perhaps, is William P. Magruder, of Hyattsville, who now is out to get back his old office as county commissioner.

The leader of the Republican organization is Oliver Metzerott, of Hyattsville, chairman of the State central committee for the county. Metzerott's chief aim has been to present a united front, and in this he has been highly successful. There are only a few instances where there are more Republican candidates than there are jobs, and in these the organization has decided not to indorse anybody, but to let the candidates take their chances at the polls.

In 1917, the Republicans elected nearly their entire county ticket, and it repeated its success in 1919. In 1921 Wilson Ryon contested for the leadership held by S. Gardner Cole, and put up a ticket of his own. Mr. Cole's ticket won in the primary, but in the general election the Democrats captured all but two offices. The internal row continued until this year, when the rival leaders set out to establish harmony.

Parran Agrees to Withdraw.

For a time this year it looked like there would be a fight over the nomination for State's attorney. Mr. Parran wanted to succeed himself and filed for the job. Albert R. Hassall, with the backing of Wilson Ryon, also wanted the office. Finally, in the interest of party harmony, Mr. Parran agreed to withdraw.

Thus, with two strong organizations in the field, it is difficult to say that any nomination will be equivalent to election.

GREEN MAKES TALK AT LABOR SERVICES

churches of the city and a brass octet led in the singing of various patriotic hymns. A number of the diocesan clergy in their vestments took part in the procession which preceded the service.

Representatives of more than 75 labor unions of the National Capital were present, while the workmen of the cathedral were a special delegation as well. A number of labor leaders from other cities were in the congregation.

That religion and ethics have failed if capital and labor carry on a relentless industrial class warfare was pointed out by Mr. Green in the course of his address. "In such a case the rule of righteousness in human operations has ceased to operate and a sense of individual moral responsibility has been destroyed," he declared.

Refuses to Embrace Theory.

"The American Federation of Labor steadfastly refuses to embrace such a philosophy or to accept such a pesimistic theory," continued the speaker. "However, as in all other fields of human relations, the forces of selfishness, wrongdoing and greed are in constant conflict with the forces of righteousness, justice and fair dealing in the relationship of many associated in industry."

Mr. Green called for a balanced relationship betwen the forces of industry. Working people must be able to speak collectively, he held, and be able to deal efficiently and constructively with national, civic and industrial affairs affecting them.

The value of religious principles in the conduct of employers, managers and workers was emphasized by Mr. Green. Such principles give rise to righteous dealing, reciprocal good will, mutual respect and a strict adherence to the principles of justice and honesty, according to this speaker. The best interests of industry are based upon a mutual respect of individual and collective rights, it was stated.

Ask Equitable Division.

"If the law of righteousness and equity must prevail in business relationships and if the exercise of personal rights must not be denied in civic, community and social relationships, let the same law apply and the exercise of the same right be accorded to all those who engage in industrial relationships," exclaimed Mr. Green in one portion of his address.

In conclusion the federation president declared that the most prolific cause of industrial strife arises out of the distribution of the earnings of industry. He called for an equitable and fair distribution.

"A wage earning group receiving wages which enable those who compose it and their families to live in decency and comfort and which receives a just and equitable share of the earnings of industry is a valuable asset to society and the church, Mr. Green asserted.

He reminded his hearers that the attitude of the individual worker toward the Church and religion is influenced very largely by the personal and official conduct of those who own and manage industry. In short, the worker, according to Mr. Green, asks for practical, workable Christianity upon earth.

Electric amplifiers were installed throughout the Cathedral grounds so that the large congregation was able to hear the service and address.

RECESS APPOINTMENTS.

President Hoover's policy of keeping recess appointments at a minimum has been adopted out of consideration for the Senate and the nominees. Inasmuch as the Senate has shown no consideration for either the President or his appointees, the announcement from the White House becomes an unintentional rebuke. Mr. Hoover's desire that appointments should be confirmed by the Senate before the nominees take office stands out in sharp contrast to the announcements from some senators that any one appointed to certain positions must be ready to face the mud-slinging squad.

In spite of the urgent need for reorganization of the Federal Power Commission, the President has decided to defer appointments until after Congress meets in December. Under the tariff act he has no alternative to appointment of a new Tariff Commission before the next session. Other important vacancies may demand recess appointments. Secretary of Labor Davis will soon vacate a place in the Cabinet, and Ambassador Morrow will give up his post at Mexico City, both to seek election to the Senate. The resignation of Roy A. Young, as chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, gives the President a new problem. The Merchant Fleet Corporation is also without a president since the death of John R. Gordon.

The President would be fully justified in making recess appointments to these posts because of their importance. A long vacancy after the resignation of Secretary Davis might prove detrimental to the workmen of the country. The same argument may be applied to other important posts. It is well that President Hoover has decided not to wait for senatorial confirmation of judicial appointments in districts where the courts are overburdened. The work of the Government must go on, whether Congress is in session or not. The provision for recess appointments enables the President to keep the Federal service functioning smoothly.

President Hoover from the beginning of his administration has endeavored to enlist the services of the most capable men in every line of Government activity. In many instances he has persuaded citizens to forego large salaries in order to undertake difficult Federal work. This is no small achievement in an age so predominantly economic. But when candidates must undergo defamatory attacks in the Senate as well as sacrifice large salaries, the number of eminent men available for Government service is substantially diminished. It is known that Mr. Hoover has met with repeated declinations in trying to fill important posts.

The clique in the Senate that delights in making life uncomfortable for all presidential nominees deters capable men from giving aid to the administration. This group does not hesitate to malign recess appointees. As a result the task of the President becomes peculiarly trying, but so long as he chooses the best men available he will have support of public opinion, whether or not the appointments are made in recess, and whether or not the nominations are approved by the Senate.

BAY STATE SLUSH FUNDS.

Now come lurid tales of lavish campaign slush funds in Massachusetts, with former Senator William M. Butler as the Midas whose appeals to party workers turn to gold in spite of himself. Chairman Nye, of the Senate slush fund committee, has taken cognizance of the charges "hurled" by indignant Democrats and will investigate the situation.

Any Democratic candidate for the senatorship who fails to utilize the Nye committee as a means of besmirching Republican rivals is a poor campaigner. The committee seems to be so organized as to be impervious to charges against Democrats, while supernaturally alert when charges are made against Republicans. Some cynics explain this by asserting that no Democrat anywhere commands money enough to "buy the election," while the woods are full of Republicans who delight in squandering ill-gotten fortunes in criminal attempts to reach the Senate.

William M. Butler has been pulling ahead of his party rivals in Massachusetts, and the dissensions in the Democratic ranks have inspired Republicans with the hope of electing a senator in spite of the widely advertised revolt against the national Republican party. This revolt, like some transatlantic flights, is slightly delayed by poor wiring and motor difficulties, but its manipulators hope to get it off the ground before November. The increasing strength of Mr. Butler is an alarming phenomenon, and it was to be expected that Democrats would suspend their intestine feuds long enough to combine against him. If they can induce the Nye committee to impart an official importance to the rumors of slush fund expenditures by Mr. Butler they will perhaps divert attention from their own plight.

FIREMEN'S DAY.

Washington today welcomes the firemen of the Eastern States and honors them as representatives of the firemen of the Nation. It is fitting that the firemen should have a day set aside in their honor. They number volunteers and professionals, more than 1,000,000 men. They stand as an army organized against a common enemy. They are part of the national defense, differing from the military and naval forces in that they are constantly at war. At every tick of the clock, day and night, from one to three fires are blazing somewhere in the United States, and contingents of the fire-fighter army are in action.

Firemen's Day had an humble origin. Labor Day in the District traditionally witnessed the annual baseball game between the policemen and firemen, and the parade was employed merely to drum up attendance for the game. Seven years ago it was a short procession of fire apparatus confined to local companies. From year to year, however, interest in the firemen's parade increased, and neighboring communities began to participate. Last year companies from Maryland, Virginia, Delaware, Pennsylvania and other Eastern States were represented in the procession by well-drilled men, modern apparatus and elaborate floats. The parade was reviewed by governors, legislators, diplomats, Government officials and more than 200,000 spectators. Today the climax will be reached. The parade will be more elaborate and longer than ever before. More companies and more States will be represented. A crowd larger by far than that of last year is expected to review the procession.

Washington firemen have done a creditable job in making Firemen's Day an occasion of national significance. The time has now come when they should be assisted in producing this exhibition of the country's fire protection system. In 1932 the United States will celebrate the 200th anniversary of the birth of George Washington, who was himself an active member of the Alexandria fire department. During that year all eyes will turn toward Washington. Firemen's Day should be made memorable, with companies from all over the United States participating in the festivities, exhibiting their equipment, and demonstrating modern methods of fighting and preventing fires. The parade should be reviewed by the President. Today's celebration constitutes a nucleus around which an annual national Firemen's Day can easily be built. A committee of citizens representing all sections of the United States should be appointed to take over Firemen's Day and arrange for its perpetuation on an elaborate scale.

IDENTIFYING CRIMINALS.

In accordance with the requirements of the Graham bill, enacted at the last session of Congress, the Department of Justice will inaugurate this week a bureau of statistics and identification. The new organization will serve as a clearing house for information on crime and criminals for the whole country. Without interfering with the rights of the States to enforce their own laws, it will supply information that should tend to put the fight against crime on a national basis. Criminals will find it more difficult to "lose" themselves in States remote from their crimes. Efforts of law enforcement officers will be more closely coordinated than ever before.

This may be considered the first step in the much-agitated movement to modernize the methods of dealing with crime. It is expected to furnish a foundation of data upon which a more scientific system of law enforcement can be based. Organized crime is one of the most baffling problems confronting the United States, yet little has been done to organize a new system of crime detection. Agencies of law enforcement have not developed in keeping with the change of criminal methods or even with the evolution of society.

"The institutions and precepts devised for rural and small-town conditions are failing because they are not adaptable to metropolitan conditions," writes Dean Pound, of the National Law Enforcement Commission, in his most recent book; "methods which were effective in a background of pioneer modes of thought and rural conceptions of social life in the past century are working badly because they do not meet the demands of a highly developed industrial and urban conception of social life in the present century."

Apparently the whole system of dealing with crime, including police work, criminal jurisprudence and disposition of convicts, needs adjustment, if not a complete overhauling. The fact that a central bureau for assembling data and facilitating identification is being established is important, but the chief significance of this new clearing house of crime lies in the hope that it will stimulate the application of science and modern efficiency to law enforcement.

CONSOLIDATE RAILROADS FIRST.

When Senator Couzens directed his questionnaire to organizations interested in railway valuations, inviting an expression of opinion as to the effect of the Howell bill, he should have been able to sit down and write their replies himself. The Howell bill, in effect, is designed to permit the Interstate Commerce Commission to apply the methods used in the O'Fallon case to the valuation of American railroads, although the Supreme Court set aside the O'Fallon valuation on the ground that all pertinent factors had not been given due consideration. The O'Fallon decision was a victory for the railroads; hence the roads and the organizations they sponsor are naturally opposed to the Howell bill. Only consumers' organizations, which fear an increase in railroad rates as a result of the O'Fallon decision, support the Howell bill.

The replies received by Senator Couzens fall into two categories. Those that speak for the railroads oppose the bill on the grounds of unconstitutionality and raise the issues of "Government in business" and "Government ownership." Those representing shippers and the public, while not always approving the bill as a whole, express the belief that legislation along such lines is needed. The wide gulf that separates the two schools of thought, however, indicates how bitter the battle over the Howell bill will be in the forthcoming session.

The question of valuation is but a minor element in the large problem of railroad operation and regulation. It is subsidiary to the larger question of consolidation. If the roads were to be permitted to perpetuate the existing set-up the valuation process would have to be settled without undue delay. But the law specifies that the roads shall be consolidated and merged into new trunk systems set up to serve the public adequately, to effect operating economies, and to assure proper competition. The whole railway map is scheduled for remaking; hence the roads may be considered as operating for the present on a purely temporary basis, and valuation question may be held subsidiary to the consolidation problem.

Considerable attention will be focused on the railroads in the next session. The Howell bill is but one of several having to do with railroad legislation. Congress should confine its attention to legislation designed to speed the cause of consolidation. Once the railroad map is remade, a rule as to the valuation of consolidated systems will be in order.

SOVIET EXPORTS

From the Manitoba Free Press.

In the discussion as to whether Russia will export wheat on a large scale this year, the comforting assurance is given by some who claim to have special sources of information, that this will not be possible because Russia is not yet producing enough for her own consumption.

But this has in reality nothing to do with the case. It is not a question of Russia having wheat for export, but one of whether that country will produce any considerable volume of wheat this year. If Russia has wheat, and it suits the humor or the interest of the Soviet government to sell it abroad, it will be sold regardless of whether there is, or is not, need for it at home. This is the principle upon which Russia carries on foreign trade; there is no mystery about it.

Mr. E. F. Wise, member of the Parliament of Great Britain, has been for years adviser of the Russian cooperative movement. Speaking recently in London before the Royal Institute of International Affairs, Mr. Wise said:

"Russia is now financing her industries by exporting beyond her capacity all kinds of goods which are needed at home, such as butter and eggs. She is exporting more petrol than she ought, more matches, even manufactured goods like textiles and goloshes, and so on—exporting them because it is the only possible way by which she can at present finance the purchases of plant which she must have. The only alternative method, of course, would be to finance her purchases abroad on ordinary terms, as such purchases are financed in other countries by means of long-term loans or credits. If loans were obtainable, the exporting—shall I say dumping?—of these goods would at once stop, because Russia and the Russian population does not at all desire that form of self-sacrifice."

There are in this passage an invitation, an appeal, and a threat. If the "burgeois" world will not give Russia credits—which it declines to do for quite sound reasons—Russia will build up credits for herself in the countries from which she must make purchases by selling products at whatever price it is necessary to fix in order to effect a sale. Being state goods forced into foreign markets for a particular purpose regarded as essential to the state, price is a secondary consideration; and the fact that the goods ought to be consumed at home and not exported is not a consideration at all.

This being the known policy of Russia, it will not do to brush aside as mere bluff the recent statement by Mikoyan, trade commissar of the U. S. S. R. at Moscow, that the export of grain is being organized on a great scale for the present year. Says the dispatch in the London Times:

"He explained that this course had become necessary because the Soviet government could not otherwise obtain the required millions in foreign currency. Trouble was expected with the collective farms, as some did not wish to part with the grain for export. The central government had accordingly drawn up standards for a compulsory proportional corn levy, varying from 25 to 50 per cent of the total harvest from the collective farms, for which prices would be fixed. This applied to collective farms, but Mikoyan stated that government also intended using the corn levy as a weapon to strike a blow at individualist peasants who had remained outside the collective farms."

Competition of a peculiarly dangerous kind from this source is, therefore, a possibility for the present season and a certainty for future seasons.

"Banana are held aloft while consuming; sausage are usually left in reclining position. Sausages depend for creation on human being or stuffing machine while banana are pristine product of honorable mother nature.

frequently chisel them shut,
Bedsprings that sag in the middle, a roof that leaks bucketsful, but
Describing the cottage in winter with something of pride in our tone,
We tell that our home for the summer has every convenience known.

We've an ice box that's shy a few hinges, and six or seven doors without locks.
If the children get rough on the porch swing the upper floor jiggles and rocks.
The window shades fly from the rollers, the carpets are thredded and frayed,
But please don't forget for a minute we've every convenience made.

We've cold water always and sometimes on lucky days water that's hot.
We've mirrors you can't see your face in, a clock that strikes twelve when it's not.
We've a radio burdened with static, we've a lawn that for weeks has been brown,
But still it is true that our cottage has every convenience of town.

This place is all right for the summer, we love it up here 'mid the pines,
But I'm weary of flies and mosquitoes and bugs of tremendous designs.
Though we've every convenience heard of, I often remark with a smirk,
I'll be glad to get back to the city where all the conveniences work.

If a Cheat Is Invited Everywhere, Will Boys Learn Not to Cheat?

By ROBERT QUILLEN

WHAT America needs more than anything else is a new birth of honor.

Common honesty is no longer common.

Men who value their word above money are hard to find.

I do not refer to gangsters, racketeers and professional thieves, nor to those who steal from their employers at the risk of going to jail, but to ordinary men who consider themselves honest and yet have no understanding of honor.

A few years ago a widow used her fortune of millions to pay her dead husband's debts. A man now in Congress assumed and paid the obligations left by his bankrupt father. Two automobile manfacturers made a deal involving millions and trusted one another without the scratch of a pen.

These three incidents revealed no trait more remarkable than common honesty, yet all were regarded as news worthy of headlines and editorial comment.

Do you believe dishonest men are few?

In your own community, no matter how small, you will find prominent citizens who have organized corporations to fleece their trusting neighbors and avoided the payment of dividends by the simple expedient of raising their own salaries.

Your banker, if you live in a small town, will tell you that he turns down innumerable "bogus" checks.

Your merchant, if he does a credit business, will tell you that scores of his customers are deliberate "dead beats."

Among men who make small wagers, how many consider a check a sufficient pledge?

How many men, having promised to buy at a certain figure, will keep their word when values fall?

How many men, pinched by hard times, will not save all they can and leave their creditors to suffer?

You know how rare honor is in a pinch, but do you know why?

It is because the community continues to respect men who break their word to escape loss or trick their fellows to get a profit.

While men without honor rank as gentlemen, what incentive has youth to be honorable?

What can make our boys love honor for honor's sake if the man who bankrupts himself to make his word good is called a crank and a sap?

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

IMA DODO CONGRATULATES HELEN OF ROUMANIA.

Dear Helen: Well, Helen, I can't tell you how glad I am that you are not letting King Carol, the playboy of Europe, use you for a set-up in his anxiety to get coronated according to Hoyle. You certainly have the married women of the world standing back of you, and although I am a single girl myself, I would like to see Carol do me dirt the way he did you and then come back when he got ready and try to get me to kiss and make up for the press and public. I was afraid you would weaken, as I could tell from the newspapers that the king was bringing a lot of pressure to bear, and I was certainly tickled silly to read that you had held him for no gain right on the five-yard line.

* * * *

No matter how many ministers or boy friends he sends around to argue with you, Helen, don't make any concessions unless you get everything you want in the way of guaranties, and even then I would make Carol put up a cash deposit to be forfeited in case he gets girl trouble again.

* * * *

I suppose he has been around handing you that old oil about you being the only woman and promising that if you will only forgive and forget he will be a good husband and Elk for the rest of his life. He has probably been passing out the line about never really caring for that Lupescu girl whom he ran off with on the ground that you didn't understand him, but if you didn't understand him then you certainly couldn't understand him now.

* * * *

The plain truth, Helen, is that now that he has joined the ranks of the unemployed by being a king he wants things around the palace to look respectable in the eyes of the world and he knows that unless you make up and go through with the coronation with him like a loving wife it will be a complete bust. The king business is pretty risky these days, anyhow, and a man's only chance to keep the job depends on his registering with the peepul as a Rotarian who lives a good home life and never does anything to cause adverse editorials.

* * * *

Well, if you would make up with him without him giving the gate definitely to that other woman you would be a big silly, as you would only help complete a bogus picture of domestic happiness in the imperial palace behind which (the picture I mean, not the palace) Carol could resume making whoopee with Magda, and if he once got you sitting in the palace window looking like a contented wife and mother to passersby you would be playing the game up his alley.

* * * *

So don't you move into the palace until you have everything in writing, and I would advise you to have a couple of good witnesses, too. He will ultimately give in, as this is no year to give up a throne and go out looking for work.

Hoping you continue too smart to let him fool you again, I am,

Yours truly,

IMA DODO.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Tenderfeet Now Transformed Into Hardboiled Vaqueros and Cowgirls Within Ten Minutes on Dude Ranches.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: There was a time when the cowboys of the West had many an enjoyable afternoon at the expense of some poor Eastern tenderfoot, in those days when men were men and women were mothers not politicians. Times have changed, as word comes from Montana and Wyoming that the making of dude Westerners is now a million dollar industry. T. Joe Cahill, executive secretary of the Dude Ranchers Association, with offices in Billings, Mont., announces that 128 dude ranches are now operating in Montana and Wyoming alone.

Every summer, men, women and children who want to be hard-boiled Westerners come from all parts of the country. The association which Mr. Cahill represents takes upon itself the novel task of turning these Easterners into the real thing, with ten-gallon hats, chaps, red kerchiefs, high-heeled boots, guns, and all the other accoutrements of a Billy the Kid wardrobe. The complete change is made ten minutes after the tenderfoot has stepped off the train.

"Sixty per cent of our visitors are dudeens or dudettes, as we call the girls," says Mr. Cahill. "These girls come from college, from Hollywood, from offices and from luxurious homes—all wanting to be cowgirls for a month or so. When we meet them at the train they are all dressed in chiffons, with high heels and dainty hats. But ten minutes later they are out on the plains, dressed in overalls, heavy boots and a big hat. That is the way they stay until they go home."

Girls are not the only ones who spend their summer at the dude ranches. There are boys from graded school, college boys who return to the campus in the fall, elderly women who tramp through the wilderness, and tired business men who spend much of their time in the saddle.

Dude ranches started in 1904, when a few young men from Pittsburgh bought a ranch to try their hand at cowpunching. It was not long until their friends came to visit them during the summer. The owners decided to make them pay for their education. Instead of decreasing, the number of visitors began to increase, and the movement developed into a paying proposition. Many old cowpunchers who owned ranches then took up the idea of dude ranching. Then a few women also followed the example, until now the dude ranch is well established in Montana and Wyoming, and the Eastern tourist can play bad man without running the risk of being pot-shotted by sure-enough buckeros.

Let's Declare a "Prosperity Day" in Which Every One Would Pay Up His Debts.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: A review of the accounts of many lines of industry discloses the fact that liabilities are not being liquidated in the proper manner. Some firms have ample funds, yet are not paying their bills promptly. This situation can be traced down the line from manufacturer to consumer, and in many lines of business approaches a situation of frozen credit. This is not a healthy condition at any time, and especially not now, when we are in the midst of a period of business depression. People are not paying their bills whether they have the money or not. Once this condition is rectified a big step toward normal business will have been taken.

To assist business and conditions in general wonders could be accomplished if we declared a sort of "Chinese New Year." Call it Prosperity Day, say, October 1. Let every person or firm make every effort possible to pay up all past-due obligations by that date. Once our credit situation is normal, business will recover in short order.

If the newspapers and other institutions such as the National Association of Credit Men, banks and big business will get behind such a move and give it the proper publicity, from one end of the country to the other, we can, no doubt, perform a miracle "faith cure" on our sick business. If every man, woman and child has the faith, the job can be done. Let everybody make every effort to pay all past-due obligations by October 1, and we will find that prosperity is knocking at the door.

E. B. DREHER.

Navy League's Policy Outlined by Chairman of the Board.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: When the London naval treaty shall have been ratified by all signatories and ratification deposited, the size and nature of the United States Navy will come under new restrictions.

The Navy League of the United States therefore advocates, prospectively, the carrying out of an orderly naval building and replacement program within the time limits of the treaty, as well as within its restrictions, along such lines as may most economically and efficiently serve the interests of the United States.

The league will continue its efforts to broaden popular understanding of the bases of the naval policy of the United States, for the growth of popular appreciation of the international relationships between assured domestic prosperity and foreign trade, shipping and naval power to safeguard them has been most gratifying.

Thus, with a full recognition of the limitations and restrictions of the treaty, the Navy League will support the active and orderly development of the United States Navy as the fullest compliance by the United States with the letter and spirit of the London naval treaty.

Chairman of the Board.

Miss Junkin's Marriage Set For Midweek

Director for Federation of Women's Clubs to Be Wed in Iowa.

By JEAN ELIOT.

MISS JOSEPHINE JUNKIN, director of headquarters of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, will be married on Wednesday in Red Oak, Iowa, to Mr. Clinton L. Doggett, of the United States Shipping Board. However, Mr. Doggett will bring his bride to Washington and she will resume her work, so Mr. Doggett's gain will not be the General Federation's loss.

Miss Junkin was but 26 years old when she first took over her important post with the General Federation, her selection for the work being in line with the organization's policy of endeavoring to interest women of the younger generation in its activities. This was back in the days when Mrs. Thomas G. Winter was president of the General Federation; and a favorite line with club women then was "If Winter come, can Spring (Miss Junkin) be far behind?" "Spring" was, in truth, an apt name for Miss Junkin, who was—and is—a very pretty woman of the Scandinavian type, with pale gold hair and pansy eyes.

Under several other chiefs Miss Junkin has carried on, her enthusiasm and capability in a most demanding job—the general federation headquarters being a clearing house for 3,000,000 women—helping to make a success of the "youth movement" among club women.

The daughter of the late Representative Joseph M. Junkin, who long represented an Iowa constituency in Congress, Miss Junkin went out to Red Oak some time ago to be with her mother until the time of the wedding. The ceremony will take place in the Congregational Church at Red Oak on Wednesday.

Mr. Doggett is the son of Mr. Laurence Locke Doggett, a distinguished educator, who is now president of the International Y. M. C. A. College at Springfield, Mass. Although a native of Springfield, Mr. Doggett has lived in Washington since coming to the Shipping Board as public relations counsel.

What Today Means to You

By MARY BLAKE

"VIRGO."

IF September 1 is your birthday the best hours for you on this date are from 8 a. m. to 9 a. m., from noon to 1:30 p. m. and from 11 p. m. to midnight. The danger periods are from 10:30 a. m. to 11:30 a. m. and from 3 p. m. to 4:15 p. m.

The astrological influences on this date are of a seductive nature and may temporarily lead you astray. Reports and rumors of a disquieting character. Guard your work and position and double your efforts. Postpone your pleasures until eventide.

You have a gentle, home-loving, hospitable personality, which deceives those who do not really know you. You do not conspicuously display your fighting weapons, and your fighting strength is often underestimated. You have iron principles, which you courageously uphold. When defending right and justice, you are not afraid of man, the devil or the deep sea. You should prove yourself to be a very sound and solid man or woman of affairs, and you stand for straight, clean methods. As a leader you will rule with a firm hand. You meet with enmity and jealousy, but you are strong enough to hold your own.

You are a deep thinker, but are not unimaginative, and your vision is that of a prophet. Your religious beliefs are deep-seated, and you do not allow your intellectuality to detsroy your faith and hope. "Work without hope," says Coleridge, "draws nectar in a sieve." You do not rely upon chance and luck, but you do trust the fruits of your own energies. You have a critical nature, which makes you discriminating, but you have far too much sense and diplomacy to let this trait discolor your personality. You know when to keep your thoughts to yourself and when to keep a silent tongue and a blind eye. Seek higher educational facilities; you have the brains to make use of them.

Three Cold Facts

Of vital interest to every citizen

1. The University of North Carolina recently made an investigation of retail food prices in Durham, N. C., a typical American city. It found that chain store grocery prices of advertised goods were 13.79 cents in the dollar lower than prices in other stores.

2. The Universtiy of Kentucky announced a few days later that it had made a retail price study of all sorts of foods in Lexington, Ky., another typical city. It found food prices in chain stores were 14.03 cents in the dollar lower than prices in other stores.

3. The average American family spends for food between $600 and $800 a year, according to estimates of the best known authorities. This means that the average family buying its food at chain stores saves from $84 to $112 a year.

Customers of A&P knew these facts before these impartial investigations were made. It is in the public interest that everyone should know them.

SUPPLY AND DEMAND DEFEATS PRICE-FIXERS

Pegging of Commodities Usually Vain, Fisher Says

Nitrate Price Plans Doomed to Fail as in Sugar, Rubber, Grains and Coffee; Gold Alone Is an Exception.

By IRVING FISHER,
Professor of Economics, Yale University.

Special to The Washington Post.

New Haven, Conn., Aug. 31.—While economic and mostly futile, the efforts to "peg" prices of individual commodities during a world-wide business decline continue unabated. Chairman Legge of the Farm Board had hardly announced the failure of the United States Government in upholding the prices of grains by its purchase plan than the nitrogen interests signed a scheme in Paris to "stabilize" the world price of nitrates for fertilizers.

Like all such schemes, for fixing the prices of individual commodities, such as coffee, rubber, steel, tin, copper and sugar, the nitrate control plan is not watertight. The new agreement sets up control of production, distribution and prices of nitrogen in every producing country in the world except the United States. Here the Sherman antitrust law stands in the way.

Of what avail is the agreement between Chile and Germany, largest producers of natural and synthetic nitrogen, respectively, even if they bring into the agreement France, Holland, England, Belgium, Italy, Norway, Poland, Czechoslovakia and Ireland, when they leave out the United States?

How can the price of nitrates remain fixed when we already produce 13 per cent of the world production, with the probability, according to the statement of the Department of Commerce, that the present year will see an increase in this percentage?

New Lows for Sugar.

It was only last September that the Cuban Single Sales Sugar Agency was formed to handle all the sales of sugar from Cuba. Cuba had already restricted the size of the crop in 1927, with the result that other countries promptly increased their production. The slight increase in prices was too small to compensate the Cuban growers for restriction in output. The agency, likewise, was unable to maintain the price of sugar, so that the deliveries for this September have been carried to new lows. Yet renewed efforts are being made in Cuba to limit the size of the world crop and the Cubans are negotiating toward this end with Java. Javan producers, however, seem unwilling to make concessions.

In like manner the artificial control of tin and copper prices has failed. In vain has the Tin Producers Association attempted to consolidate the mining companies of the Malay states, Bolivia and the Dutch East Indies that supply nearly three-quarters of the world's output. Nevertheless, tin prices have been falling steadily since the beginning of 1927 while the world's visible supply has been rapidly increasing. The attempt to observe a two months' holiday in tin mining has been followed by actual production of more tin by the federated Malay states, apparently in an endeavor to make up for low prices by larger production. Also, the "holiday" enabled the higher-cost producers to continue work, for these are outside the combine.

Coppers Melancholy State.

Newsprint paper furnishes another example. The Canadian provincial governments are being besought to increase the price of all newsprint to a minimum of $60 per ton. The result would be only to transfer production to clients on the American side of the border, so that with higher prices in Canada, Canadian operating percentage would be even lower than at present.

Then there is the failure of the Sao Paulo government's attempts at coffee valorization, with current prices of coffee the lowest since 1921, and within a small fraction of the lowest in 30 years. The melancholy state of the copper market, below 11 cents a pound for this September's deliveries, has followed the attempts of the copper chieftains to peg the price of copper at 18 cents last year, and again at 14 cents in the spring of 1930. Again, reports come from Frankfort-on-the-Main that the International Crude Steel Cartel is finding itself in a critical situation. Its minimum-price schedule, formed last February for the most important rolled products, has failed in a storm of price-cutting. This originally took the indirect form of granting special rebates in overseas markets, upon concurrent orders of products not controlled by the syndicate.

Gold Fixing Sole Exception.

All these efforts to fix prices for individual commodities have yielded to the normal play of supply and demand, which, in the long run, if not interfered with, is usually salutary in its effects. There are times, of course, when the public needs protection against extortion through monopoly by fixation of rates, and some price-fixing may be allowable in the emergency of war. But in normal times the only exception admissable is that of the fixing of the price of gold, with the idea of affording a standard by means of which the prices of all other commodities may be expressed. The price of gold has been fixed by law ever since 1837 at $20.67 an ounce of pure gold, which is merely another way of saying that the weight of pure gold in a dollar is 23.22 grains.

Thus, while price-control of an individual commodity is, as a rule, wrong, control of the general price level is right; because that is needed to control the standard by which every individual price is fixed. The present gold control is, however, inadequate, for we need a more stable standard than a mere fixation of gold price can give. In order to stabilize the general price level, the Federal Reserve Board has done yeoman service through its open-market policy of buying and selling Government securities and control over the rediscount rate. This has in a measure regulated the purchasing power of gold. The effect has been to give a fair field for the market fixation of individual prices in the free play of competition.

STOCK PRICE LEVEL IN UPWARD SWING

Trading Remains Low, but Market Firms Up in Many Issues.

OILS AND MOTORS WEAK

By S. W. DIEFENDORF.
(Irving Fisher Service.)

The New York Stock Exchange closed the month with the stock price level rising. Completing the second week in which stock trading was still slow, price levels have nevertheless become firm. The Irving Fisher index of common industrial stocks shows an advance by 2.4 per cent during the past week, and by 5.7 per cent from the August 12 low of 126.7. At 133.9 at the close of August the index had recovered to less than 1 per cent below the index of August 1.

The stock groups, in general, moved upward with the market. Oils and motor stocks alone were off last week; the oils group by 1.1 per cent, and the motors group by 0.3 per cent, while oils stood at their low for the month, showing an unbroken downward trend since July 11.

The radios and theater group made the outstanding gain last week, closing the week up by 8.7 per cent. The electrical equipment group rose by 7.0 per cent, the stores group by 5.4 per cent and the chemicals group by 4.2 per cent.

Value of Tradings Drops.

The average daily trading in all stocks on the New York Stock Exchange dropped last week by 12 per cent, to $93,700,000. Fifteen of the twenty groups showed lower values traded, with prices making slight gains.

The stock groups in machinery and railroad equipment, tobacco, chemical, office equipment and household products made daily gains of less than $1,000,000 each. Declines of over $2,000,000 each were in the utility, oils, radio and agricultural equipment groups.

Level Rises in London.

Foreign bourses presented last week a less stable condition than appeared on the New York Stock Exchange. The movements of the stock price indexes of Paris, Berlin and London showed continued weakness. Berlin and London made 1930 lows last month. The Paris level last week was less than one index point above its 1930 low for the week ended June 20.

The level of stock prices in Paris and Berlin dropped last week, following slight gains for the preceding week. The Paris index is at the level of June 20, having advanced by 9 per cent from the low to 122.1 in the week ended July 11, but falling for the following seven weeks by 8.1 per cent.

Stock price level rose in London last week by 1.9 per cent from the low of 69.3 for the preceding week. Since the 1930 high of 99.6 for the week ended April 11, the London level of stock prices has dropped by 29 per cent. During this period it had recorded gains for but two weeks, namely, the week ended May 16 by 0.3 per cent, and last week by 1.9 per cent.

Graded Stocks Rise With Market.

Price indexes of the graded industrial groups of stocks advanced last week, in line with the index of all industrials, showing gains of more than 2 per cent each.

The speculative group displayed added strength, rising by 3.3 per cent to a 9 per cent gain over the August 12 low.

Investment stocks maintained a steady rate of gain, up by 2.6 per cent and closing the week 7.7 per cent above the August 12 low. This grade was but one index point below the July 28 high of 178.0 (1926 average equals 100).

Semi-investment stocks rose by 2.2 per cent last week to 105.1, but 4 per cent above the August 15 low of 101.1.

Below are shown index numbers of prices of common industrials on the New York Stock Exchange, arranged in classes derived from Moody's ratings.

The Industrial Cake and Savings.

Savings in process tend to accumulate in the form of unused industrial facilities unless new purchasing power can be provided to balance them. Hence shortages in consumer purchasing power are produced, because you can not have your cake and eat it.

BOND PRICES MOUNT TO NEW HIGH LEVEL

Advance Continued in Week, Despite Weakness in Government Issues.

RAIL GROUP IS STRONG

The level of bond prices on the New York Stock Exchange rose to a new 1930 high at 101.9 on August 27, 0.3 per cent above the March 21 peak. Despite a drop of 0.04 per cent from the high to the week's close, the weekly index of seventy bonds rose by 0.1 per cent last week, completing the eighth successive week of rising bond price levels. Tradings in bonds on this exchange rose by 16 per cent to the high average daily figures since the week ended July 24.

Bonds in the first-grade rails group were largely responsible for the rise in the index of all bonds, closing last week at the year's high with a gain of 0.7 per cent. Second-grade rails, industrial and utility bonds rose by 0.1 per cent with utilities at their 1930 peak on August 27. Government bonds have sagged in the past two weeks with United States bonds off by 0.43 per cent from their August 12 high and foreign bonds off by 0.45 per cent from their August 11 high.

The rise in first grade rail bonds has been spectacular, showing a gain of 4.5 per cent since the week ended April 25, or an average weekly gain of 0.28 per cent for eighteen weeks. The price level in this group is rising with an increasing rate of change as indicated by a steady gain at an average rate of 0.20 per cent for the sixteen weeks between April 25 and August 15 and the increased rate of 0.68 per cent that has been maintained during the past two weeks.

Predicting the Stock Market.

There is little point in a prediction that the stock market should begin to make a movement, upward or downward, at some point weeks or months in the future. As soon as there is a sound reason for a movement, the movement begins.

Dare Interprets the Mode

Paris, Aug. 31.

HOW would you like today a little review of the fall color story? The really new and important color, of course, is gray, especially in coats and ensembles that call for fur trimming. And they are always trimmed in gray fur.

There is some beige, of course, particularly for sportswear, and brown, as usual, as it is unquestionably an autumn color.

There is a range of blues that is rather important, particularly pervanche blue, which we have not seen now for several seasons. This is the blue, you know, that we call periwinkle blue. Then vivid blues called royal blue, midnight blue, or sometimes electric blue, are especially featured for evening and for sports wear.

* * * But navy blue, as one would expect, is not quite as important as it was throughout the summer. It will, of course, always be shown by the Haute Couture, as it is so much favored by smart women. There is a noticeable absence of purplish blues and purple, excepting in the case of the occasional fantastic suit or coat, or more particularly, evening gown.

Black and white are seen less in combination than formerly, although more singly. A great deal of white is shown for evening, especially in the beaded and pearl trimmen materials. And black, particularly in velvet. There are, however, a number of very smart, fine black and white tweeds, but not as many black dresses trimmed with white as formerly.

* * * *

Vivid reds and yellow-orange are shown for winter sports wear, and some darker, more subdued red for daytime wear. Bottle green is another prime favorite for daytime.

Black, especially in velvet, is very much shown, for dressy afternoon wear, for daytime coats and for elegant evening wear in gowns and wraps.

Besides white and black for evening, a soft rose-peach shade is featured, in faille.

* * * *

And there you are! But the fur accessories—ah, that's something else again, and a very interesting something, too. Aren't you a bit interested in sending Dare a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Washington Post to find out how to make your old scraps of fur over into new and smart accessories? A fur purse, for instance, or a belt, or an adorable basque beret—better send that envelope!

* * * *

And these two smart Heim Models, the one on the left showing a black satin skirt, white satin top, not separate, and trimming on the blouse of shades of gray ribbon. The other, a sports tailleur of red wool, with a deeper red jacket of the solid color.

* * * *

Why not put a white or pink carnelia on your gold or silver kid evening slippers? And then fasten the slipper with a jeweled buckle. Of course, that's only if you are the type to get away with it—I, for one, couldn't possibly.

Then there's the weekly Dare Fashion letter that appears in the Sunday Washington Post every week. You should look for it.

Au Revoir.

WASHINGTON: MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 1, 1930. 7

NATS BEAT RUTHLESS YANKS, 5-1; SWEEP SERIES

Westbrook Pegler Says

Special to The Washington Post.

NEW YORK, Aug. 31.—Some of the ball players in the major and minor leagues and some retired ball players who are unable to play in any leagues any more are strangely bitter on the subject of Florida real estate nowadays. It is a remarkable change, because I distinctly recall that in the boom times of 1924 and 1925 these boys were all enthusiastic about their holdings in Royal Terrace Heights and Versailles Gardens and East Poinsettia Manor and places with all such fancy and alluring names which had been palmetto flats only a short time before.

Just a few days ago old Joey Judge, first baseman of the Washington Club, pressed the blotter on a check of his for $100 for taxes on his holdings down yonder and muttered a distinct swear word, indicating that he was deeply moved by his thoughts, because Joey doesn't express himself in swear words often.

Swears Once a Year, At Tax Time.

"Why, Joey," your correspondent exclaimed, "did you say that?"

"I did," Joey allowed. "I say one swear word every year. I say it when I write my check for the taxes on those lots on that island down by Tampa. I wish we hadn't ever trained in Tampa. I think our proprietor, Mr. Griffith, ought to reimburse all us boys for the sums we spent for lots down there, because he took us there in the line of our duty, and if we hadn't gone there the real estate salesmen wouldn't have ketched us.

"One ketched me one day after we had received our world series money. He took me out in a skiff and showed me where this island was going to be. There was a big scow anchored there with a long snout, like an elephant's nozzle, stirring around on the bottom of the Gulf of Mexico. This scow would breathe in mud from the bottom and squirt it out on a little sand bar. Then the water and mud would slide back, but some of the mud would stick and you could see the sand bar getting bigger by the minute.

"The salesman hauled out a beautiful picture of a tropical island with yachts sailing all around it and people dancing on the terrace, with very appetizing drinks on the tables and with exclusive millionaires playing polo, golof, tennis and all such expensive and exclusive sports all over the place.

Let Him in Because He's a Celebrity.

"He said it was my chance to get in on a great investment and he was only letting me in because I was a famous celebrity from the world series and they only wanted leading citizens because the place was going to be very exclusive. Just then the barge gave another grunt and squirted up some more land onto the bar and he said that was just about where my lots would be, right in the center of everything. Moreover, he positively assured me that I could sell my lots for fifteen or twenty times the present price if I wished to do so, although he said, of course, a famous, wealthy and exclusive ball player like me probably would build a mansion on them instead of selling at any price.

"There is $14,000 of my money on those islands now, not counting the taxes I am paying every year when I use my annual swear word," Mr. Judge said, "and the whole thing was nothing but a deception because I haven't been able to sell the lots for fifteen or twenty times the price or even one times the price, and I assure you that if I could get half the price today I would be very pleased to consider the matter with the utmost seriousness."

There are a large number of others who will understand the state of emotion which moves Mr. Judge to indulge in his annual swear. Walter Johnson states that he also bought a modest expanse of gray, barren baybottom on the same island, paying approximately $15,000 for the same, but he is even more rueful about it all because there came a day down there while the boom was still booming when a gentleman walked up and implored him to sell him one of his lots for $17,000.

Invests in Rich Hotel.

Not only that, but Mr. Johnson invested some further shillings in a hotel which was certain to be the winter rendezvous of all the most refined millionaires of the eastern seaboard and something seems to have happened to direct these millionaires elsewhere these last few winters.

Altogether, I reckon, the ball players must have invested $250,000 of actual baseball money in Florida subdivisions during those days, when fourteen of sixteen major league teams and half a dozen of the high minors were training in the State. Some of them paid very little money down, and when the boom went boom they quietly defaulted their notes. Whereupon the land reverted to the last previous owners and also to its old primitive state, with the sidewalks lost in weed growth and vines and the rattlesnakes sunning on deserted pavements, purring with their tail buttons.

Will Doak, the spitball pitcher, laid off his regular employment with the Brooklyn Robins for a whole season, I remember, passing up some $15,000 of practical pay, to spread out wide and important as a real estate dealer and promoter. I haven't heard how Mr. Doak's investments turned out, but if his were like all the rest, no doubt he repents the season that he didn't pitch ball while he still was able to.

Klem, the Umpire, Bruised.

Will Klem, the umpire, also set up in business as a dealer over on the Miami shore, and the wreckage bruised him somewhat in the region of his financial nerve when the boom exploded. Old Mr. Klem was a dealer in a large way, and at one stage of the insanity it was common talk in the baseball colony that Will was a millionaire, as maybe he was, on paper.

Miller Huggins, the late manager of the Yankees, became a citizen of St. Petersburg and carired on a lively commerce in footage, acreage, and suburban cottage for a long spell, but Mr. Huggins was a very shrewd man, and I doubt that he held his lands too long. He could anticipate the break of a ball game, and his per-

200 Oarsmen Awaiting Big Regatta

Middle States' Titles at Stake off Alexandria Today.

East's Leading Clubs Compete; 50 Crews Are Entered.

Special to The Washington Post.

ALEXANDRIA, Aug. 31.—Two hundred leading oarsmen in the East will participate in the thirty-ninth annual Middle States regatta here on Labor Day, over the George Washington Memorial 1-mile straightaway rowing course. The races will be viewed by several thousand spectators and will begin promptly at 1 o'clock.

Magnus Bales, general chairman of the regatta committee, today announced that the Coast Guard cutter Apache would not be present, due to exercises in Baltimore, but Government officials had consented to send four Coast Guard boats to patrol the course. Three of these boats will be used for keeping the rowing paths clear while the other will act as the judges' boat. Two pulling boats for use near shore will also be on hand.

The George Washington Memorial Rowing Course will be dedicated promptly at 12:45 o'clock, when an airplane piloted by A. W. Robertson, of the Alexandria Airport, will fly up and down the course and when reaching the front of the Old Dominion Boat Club a wreath will be dropped by Magnus Bales, general chairman of the regatta.

Star Crews Drill On Course.

Two crews of the Undine Barge and the Bachelor Rowing Clubs, of Philadelphia, held light workouts over the Potomac Sunday morning, and the oarsmen expressed their delight at the smooth water they encountered. Later in the afternoon, the New York A. C. oarsmen and crews from the Virginia Boat Club, of Richmond, went out for a light workout. Several of the nearby rowing clubs are expected to arrive early Monday morning. The rowing clubs from outside sections arrived in special Pullman cars and a large number of club members made the trip to see their favorites in action.

The feature of the fifteen-event card will be the senior eight-oared shell race, the last on the program. Five clubs, the New York A. C., Bachelor Barge, Fairmont A. C., Malta Boat Club and the Undines, are entered. Judging from comment heard at the Old Dominion Club the New York A. C. is favored to cop honors, but a close race is expected.

While the oarsmen are guests in Alexandria they have established their headquarters at the George Mason Hotel on Washington street.

Fifty crews are entered in the various events and the first race on the program, after the course dedication exercises, will see senior single scullers dash down the Potomac in a quarter-mile thriller. The Boston Athletic Club has applied for permission to enter their leading sculler in this race.

15 Races Booked for Regatta.

The senior singles sprint will be followed by 14 other races in the following order: Junior single sculls, junior eight-oared shells, junior double sculls, junior four-oared gig, junior quadruple sculls, intermediate single sculls, intermediate eight-oared shells, association senior single sculls, intermediate double sculls, senior championship single sculls, intermediate quadruple sculls, senior double sculls, intermediate four-oared gig and senior eight-oared shells.

The shells to be used in the races have arrived and been gone over by expert mechanics to see that they are in perfect condition before they hit the water. A special rack, built by the Old Dominion Club with necessary protection from the weather, houses the equipment owned by the various boat clubs.

President E. E. Carver, of the Old Dominion Boat Club, extends an invitation to the public to witness the races and states that every courtesy will be tendered those who come from foreign jurisdictions. A dance at night at the Old Dominion Boat Club-house will be one of the high lights of the regatta, which is a part of the golden jubilee celebration of the Alexandria Club.

The program will probably be broadcast over Station WJSV.

Robins Pound 23 Hits To Rout Phillies, 14-3

Brooklyn, Aug. 31 (A.P.).—The Robins fell upon Sweetland and Hansen for a total of 23 hits here this afternoon and easily beat the Phillies by the score of 14 to 3. Adolfo Luque went the route for the victors.

It was the first day of play since a new 20-foot screen had been constructed atop the right-field fence at Ebbets Field. The screen was entirely ignored by the players who celebrated the occasion with five homers. Wright, Bressler and Whitney hit home runs into the left-field bleachers and Herman and Hurst hit home runs completely over the new screen.

Rough Water Hohe of Miss Carstairs

British Girl Relies on Estelle IV in 2d Heat Today.

With Her Best Boat Crippled, Gar Wood Heavy Choice.

DETROIT, Aug. 31 (A.P.).—Deprived of one of her two challenging boats, Miss Marion Barbara Carstairs, making her third attempt to wrest the Harmsworth trophy from the veteran Gar Wood, faces an almost impossible task in the second heat tomorrow of the British international speedboat classic. Mishap, which has beset each of the English girl's two previous efforts to recapture for Great Britain the trophy that symbolizes the world's speedboat championship, overtook her Estelle V, driven by Bert Hawker in the opening heat yesterday, forcing it definitely out of the race.

When Hawker accepted a tow after his fuel tanks collapsed in the first heat, Miss Carstairs was left alone with her Estelle IV as the sole hope of Great Britain in the remainder of the heat and race. She was hopelessly beaten in the first heat, but was forcing her boat at better than 72 miles an hour at the end of yesterday's heat.

Another Mishap In Race.

Mishap also entered today into what was to have been the first heat of the international race for 5½-liter hydroplanes. The Phantom, driven by H. Luecher Brown, of Houston, Tex., turned over when a patrol boat crossed its path, and the Miss Britain I, Hubert Scott Paine's challenger, was forced out by engine trouble after making a sudden stop to offer aid to the Phantom. The crew of the Phantom was unhurt and was taken off by a patrol craft. Declaring the heat "no contest," the regatta committee ordered it rerun tomorrow.

Luetcher Brown, driving his It, a cigar-shaped speedster, won the final heat of the event for small hydroplanes. Chris Ripp, of the Bayhead (L. I.) Yacht Club, finished second in his Meadowmere II, and Al Louvet took third in Bayhead II, also of the Bayhead Y. C. M. Elliott, of the Buffalo Launch Club, driving Miss Buffalo, finished fourth. "Under the point system of scoring, first place for the three-heat race went to Meadowmere; second, to It; third, to Bayhead II, and fourth, to Miss Buffalo. Brown averaged 44.375 miles per hour in today's heat.

Hawker was driving Estelle V at torpedo speed downstream and seemed destined to give the veteran Gar Wood the first beating he ever had experienced in Harmsworth competition when he was forced out yesterday. From fifth place, far in the rear at the start, Hawker had actually passed Wood in Miss America IX. Suddenly flames began spouting from Estelle V's exhaust tubes and Hawker turned her quickly out of the course. The collapse of the petrol tanks had filled the bottom of his craft with fuel. He tried vainly to make temporary repairs that would enable him to finish the heat, but finally gave up and accepted a tow, thus automatically disqualifying his boat for the remainder of the race.

Hawker Has Passed Wood.

That Hawker had passed Wood when he was forced out was not generally known until today when the designer of the two British boats told how he and his mechanician, Joe Dodkin, were covered with oil when the tanks let go.

"We had just passed the Miss America IX and were in the lead by about two boat lengths when we had to quit," he said. Hawker added that he was confident that he would have beaten Wood if misfortune had not overtaken him.

Although disappointed by the mishap, the British delegation was not disheartened, and tonight were hopeing for a rough sea tomorrow, which they said would favor Estelle IV over any of the three Miss Americas, which Gar Wood had entered in defense of the trophy.

Hawker said today that he expected to have the Estelle V repaired in time to enter her in the 1-mile speed trials on Tuesday. The five Harmsworth boats will try to better the straightaway record of 98.7 miles an hour made by the late Sir Henry Segrave on Lake Windemere, England.

Arnold Choice Today In Altoona Auto Race

Altoona, Pa., Aug. 31 (A.P.).—The favorite to win the 200-mile automobile race here tomorrow, Bill Arnold, Chicago speedster, tonight was prepared to make his last bid for the national championship of the American Automobile Association. Arnold won the Indianapolis race and that at the local track here in June. Victory tomorrow, he believes, will assure him the 1930 auto racing championship.

However, Shorty Cantlon, his rival for honors, and Lou Meyer, thrice a winner on the local track, are expected to give him stern battle. Arnold qualified at 124.3 miles an hour, the fastest preliminary time. He was followed four miles slower by Deacon Litz, Dubois, Pa., racer. Twelve of twenty-two drivers who entered will take the mark tomorrow. Wilbur Shaw, a local favorite, and Frank Farmer, third in the June race, failed to qualify, together with eight others unable to make the required speed of 103 miles an hour.

PIN BODY MEETS FRIDAY.

President Charles V. Joyce has called a meeting of the Prince Georges County Bowling League for Friday night at 8 o'clock in the American Legion clubrooms in Hyattsville.

REDS SHIP PLAYERS

Dan Howley of the Cincinnati Reds has shipped Infielder Otto Bluege and Pitcher Virgil David to the club's farm in Peoria in the Three-I League for a summer of experience.

CUBS BEATEN IN HOME FINAL

Cards Win, 8-3, as Hallahan Grants But 4 Safeties.

CHICAGO, Aug. 31 (A.P.).—Wild Bill Hallahan held the Cubs to four hits today and the St. Louis Cardinals trounced the National League champions, 8 to 3, to even the series at two each.

Outside of the eighth, when the Cubs bunched three of their safeties, Hallahan was in no danger and embellished his triumph by striking out twelve men. Jess Petty started for the Cubs, but was batted out of action in four innings. Guy Bush succeeded him and fared little better, and Lynn Nelson and Al Shealy finished without further Cardinal scoring.

The game was the final of the Cubs' home stand and sent them abroad with a record of sixteen victories and seven defeats since the first of the month.

Giants-Braves Split; Ott Hits Three Homers

New York, Aug. 31 (A.P.).—The Giants had a chance to pick up a game and a half on the league-leading Cubs today, but the McGrawmen could only break even in a doubleheader with the Braves, squeezing through to win the first game, 4 to 3, and dropping the second duel of sluggers, 14 to 10.

A four-run rally in the fourth inning overcame the Braves' three-run lead to win the opener, and a five-run furore in the fifth frame tied the score in the second contest, but even the heavy hitting of Melvin Ott, who slammed out a double and three home runs, could not bring victory to the Giants in the twilight.

The Braves hammered Chaplin, Donohue, Pruett and Parmalee for a total of 18 hits and pulled away after the Giants had caught up. The Giants made fifteen safe blows off Zachary and Cantwell, but the latter managed to stagger through to victory with the aid of his ball-mauling mates.

Reds Turn on Pirates; Win, 4-1; Rixey Stars

Cincinnati, Aug. 31 (A.P.).—After taking four straight drubbings at the hands of the Pirates, the Reds arose today and took a 4 to 1 decision over Pittsburgh behind the splendid pitching of Eppa Rixey, who held the Buccaneers to 9 scattered hits. Rixey was never in danger except in the fifth inning, when the Pirates counted their only tally. Hemsley singled to center with one out, and Rixey let loose a wild one that hit Brame on the hand. P. Waner scored Hemsley with another single to center.

1930 YEARLINGS BRING $1,700,000 AT AUCTION

Few Startling Prices Are Recorded

Money Strigency Has Not Affected Big Annual Sales.

Waggoner Purchases Are Aid in Holding Market Steady.

By GEORGE DALEY.

SARATOGA SPRINGS, Aug. 31 (N. Y.W.N.S.).—The securities market may be unsteady and indisposed, but not so the thoroughbred yearling market. In the face of general busines depression and money stringency, the sale of young horses which have been offered at auction throughout the race meeting which came to an end Saturday, closely approached the record total of a year ago, when most everybody felt rich just before that October crash which raised havoc with values.

E. J. Tranter, master mind of the Pasig-Tipton Co., is authority for the statement that the grand total this month for the 600-odd yearlings offered at auction was $1,700,000, as against $1,878,000 in 1929. This shows a falling off of only $180,000, which might be traceable as much to the offerings as to any tightening of the purse strings. The better offerings commanded the same keen competition as a year ago.

Average Price Falls Off Some.

More yearlings were thrown on the market, so that the average fell off from $3,600 in 1929 to $2,821 this season, but even this had little to do with tightness of money. The top price of $45,000, which Mrs. Charles Amory paid for the colt by Man o' War—Milky Way, which was named War and which still is a maiden, was not reached, and the $75,000 paid for New Brooms, a colt by Whisk Broom II—Payment, in 1928, which never has won a purse, was not approached.

In discussing the sales E. J. Tranter said: "We are greatly pleased and more than satisfied with general strength of the horse market. Both the grand total for the auctions here and the average as well came above all expectations. The most optimistic estimate before the sales began was for a total of $1,500,000 and most of the predictions were much lower based on the tightness and so-called scarcity of money. As the figures show we went far above the best estimate and not far short of the high figures of 1929. It was most encouraging. At least one market has not been seriously affected by the hard times. It shows the strength of the thoroughbred breeding industry, the stability of racing and the high interest fanciers have in the sport."

Widener Delighted By Firm Prices.

J. E. Widner, a steward of the Jockey Club and president of the Westchester Racing Association, is both surprised and delighted that prices held so firmly. He has just returned from enjoying some racing in both France and England where he had an opportunity to study general conditions.

J. G. Waggoner, of Texas, whose vast cattle ranges began flowing with oil a number of years ago and who races under the name of the Three D Stock Farm, did much to hold up the market to practically its full strength. In spite of disappointments of the past and the failure of Broadway Limited, now dead, which cost $74,000 and still a maiden, to say nothing of other high-priced ones, to supply the good horse he is seeking, he continued in his quest and was a free buyer.

The get of Sir Gallahad III, sire of Gallant Fox and other good ones, were the chief objective of the wealthy Texas owner and he paid the top prices for the get of this now famous stallion, which were offered by A. B. Hancock. He bought the Fasnet colt for $30,000, the Embassy filly for $26,500 and the Dare Say colt for $26,000. These were only a few o fhis purchases and his willingness to pay for what looked like the best forced other buyers to go up to get what they wanted.

Hancock Offerings Well Received.

While the Sir Gallahads were the favored ones this year the get of other stallions were not neglected. The Hancock offerings commanded the high average of $5,119, made possible by the demand or thosé sent to the ring by the son of Teddy, one of the great producers of France, but Phil T. Chinn, now the leading breeder for the public market in the country since the death of John E. Madden, once again headed the list. His first sale netted $386,800 or an average of $7,893, and his second consignment also held up well when 26 head brought $109,500, an average of over $4,200. His final average was $6,617.

For the first time last year the grand total of yearlings sold at auction in this country exceeded $2,000,000. The best, of course, have been sold, but with several other sales coming this record will be closely approached, now that sales here have gone to $1,700,000, only $300.000 away from the goal to which breeders have so long been pointing and which only orice has been reached.

—Lincoln Fields Selections—

By J. B. SNODGRASS.

A BIG shift in racing over the week-end brings the 1,500 horses in training at Saratoga southward, the majority going to Belmont Park and the others to Maryland to rest up until the opening of that season at Havre de Grace on September 22.

The long meeting at Lincoln Fields, Chicago, and Belmont Park session will be the principal tracks in operation until the Maryland season begins. The Lincoln Fields, post time is 2:15 (Eastern standard time).

The feature of the Lincoln Fields holiday card is the Joliet Handicap for 2-year-olds at 6 furlongs, fourth race. The Epinard colt, SISKIN, is selected. There will be renewed interest in the offspring of Epinard since the winning of the $55,000 Hopeful at Saratoga Saturday by another Epinard colt, Epithet, which defeated George D. Widener's unbeaten colt, Jamestown, by a half length, at 6½ furlongs, within three-fifths of a second of the world's record for the distance. SISKIN is not regarded as good as Epithet, but should have a good chance against RUSTY and DON LEON. SISKIN was second to DON LEON at Hawthorne, but DON LEON takes up considerable weight.

A heavy track seems improbable, but rain would improve Siskin's chances. RUSTY is ready. In his last race he defeated Oswego and gets in with 104 pounds against 125 for SISKIN. The Collins gelding should get the place, with DON LEON a close contender. Several of the lighter weighted horses have a chance.

FIRST RACE—NYMPH KING looks like the winner, by throwing out his last effort. This son of Colin in a recent race, previous to his last, defeated a better field than this and won by five lengths. BETTY ANN is rated the contender. Third money may go to GOLDMINT, but THE TARTAR will have a contender for this end of the purse.

SECOND RACE—For 2-year-old maiden fillies, looks like the spot for HAPPY HOLIDAY. She ran Plumage to a head finish in her last race. That covers the case. Plumage would be 1 to 2 in this field with HAPPY HOLIDAY out. LIGHT STEP is fast and was second last out. VERY WELL also has a chance and was second to Decorous in her last.

THIRD RACE—HOT SHOT has the speed of the field, unless EQUATION should run one of his best. HOT SHOT beat Gracious Gift in his last race at Hawthorne. FLAG BEARER may furnish a surprise. He was third to Tannery last week.

FIFTH RACE—MAIDEN'S TRYST, winner of her last two starts, one a sprint and the other a distance race, seems to be good at any distance, and is selected for the winner over JEM, which has won his last three starts. It should be a close finish and a two-horse race. LADRONE is probably best of the others.

SIXTH RACE—LADY BROADCAST, in the sixth race, is the outstanding probability of a winner on the entire card. She beat MY DANDY in her last race. She is a very consistent filly, and has more early speed than PIGEON HOLE, a very fast horse, but always inconsistent. SILVERDALE will have HONEY LOCUST to beat for show money. SILVERDALE is not in best form.

SEVENTH RACE—ELEVEN SIXTY is selected. He has won his last two starts, and is most improved claiming plater in training. He has not been out of the money but once in a dozen starts. SPECTACULAR and COCKRILL appear the contenders.

ANACOSTIA EAGLES TAKE LEAD IN DISTRICT RACE

St. Joe Rally Downs Col. Heights

Berger's Clout Wins Game, 9-8, in 9th Frame.

Burroughs Defeated, 18-8; Medicos in 5-1 Victory.

THE Anacostia Eagles took the lead in the District section of the Capital City League yesterday by defeating the Burroughs A. C. nine, 18-8, while St. Joseph was gaining revenge over the Columbia Heights team by a score of 9-8. The defeat puts Columbia Heights, which has held the lead since early in the season, a half game behind the Eagles with St. Joseph the same distance behind second place.

The league championship probably will be decided next Sunday, when the Eagles entertain Columbia Heights on the Congress Heights field. Two protests are pending which may have an effect on the titular race. These will be heard this week.

The rise of the Eagles has been a distinct victory for veteran sandlot players. The line-up, which includes Tommy Ford, Tom Sweeney and others who won their sandlot spurs long ago, has been winning regularly after a slow start, and is now installed the favorite to carry off the title.

St. Joe Stages Rally In Ninth.

It was by virtue of a thrilling ninth-inning rally that St. Joseph defeated Columbia Heights. With one out, Orrel Mitchell doubled down the first-base line, Buckie Buscher singled and Mitchell went to third. Bosie Berger then came through with a steaming liner to left field, scoring the tying and winning runs.

Schneider, hurling for St. Joe, went the route, and although hit hard toward the middle of the game, he settled down to blank Columbia Heights in the important eighth and ninth innings.

Eddie Cinotti and Jakie Lewis came through with home-run drives. Buscher led the St. Joe attack with a double and two singles. In addition to his homer, Lewis got a triple and a single for Columbia Heights.

Eagles Have Little Trouble.

The Eagles had little trouble in routing Burroughs. They piled up five runs in the first inning with Sugrue providing the fireworks with a home run with two men on base. The Eagles added three in the second, five in the fourth and five more in the ninth. This latter attack was started by Frank Wahler, who doubled in a pinch role.

Leonard hit a homer for Burroughs, while Evans got three hits in as many official times at bat. Goodwyn pitched a fair game and contributed three of the Eagles' fifteen hits.

In the other league games, the Army Medicos continued their winning streak at the expense of the Foxall Club, winning, 5 to 1.

Woods Wins for Army Medicos.

Pitcher Augustus Woods, of the Medicos, who defeated this team earlier in the season by the score of 17 to 0, did not allow a run to be scored until the eighth inning. The Medicos scored all their runs in the second inning, when they pounded Pitcher Pennyfield, of Foxall, for six hits and five runs. Mattaire relieved Pennyfield in the third inning. He pitched winning ball for the remaining six innings, allowing only three scattered hits and struck out nine Medicos. He performed an unusual feat while in the box, striking out every Medico player except Isom at least once. Woods was very effective in pinches.

The batting honors went to Kessler, of Foxall, with two doubles and a single in three chances, while Brown, of the Medicos, pounded a double and two timely singles in five chances. Bagley, of the Medicos, robbed Sullivan of a home run in the third inning, running to deep center and with his back to the ball leaped high in the air and caught the ball in his gloved hand. It was one of the most brilliant catches ever witnessed at Walter Reed Hospital.

Special to The Washington Post.

ALEXANDRIA, Va., Aug. 31.—Bauserman Motor Co., champions of the Arlington County division of the Capital City League, defeated Washington Woodmen of the World, 8 to 3, this afternoon on the Motorists' diamond at Arlington.

Bennie Wormsley, Bauserman pitcher, held the visitors to five scattered hits and struck out nine. Villineo and Burth starred for the Woodmen, the former connecting for the circuit and Burth getting two triples.

HYATTSVILLE ROUTS MT. RAINIER

Bailey Star of 14-1 Victory; Pigs Tie for the Lead.

THANKS to Hyattsville, the Dixie Pigs are given another chance to win the Prince Georges County section title of the Capital City League. Henry Hiser's team, out for revenge following a protest, swamped the Mount Rainier Club by a 14-1 score to allow the Pigs to tie the previous leaders.

The championship will be decided in a single game to be played next Sunday.

Charles (Bump) Bailey was the pitching hero for Hyattsville yesterday. He set Mount Rainier down with three hits, only one figuring in the run made by the losers. Bailey also turned in an odd play for a pitcher, making an unassisted double killing.

Hyattsville Batters Are Right.

The Hyattsville batters were just right and could not be stopped. They pounded out 14 hits, with Hargett leading the attack with a homer, triple and two singles in four trips to the plate.

George Brandt, playing his last game with Hyattsville before he leaves for the University of North Carolina, turned in several sparkling fielding plays.

Hyattsville started scoring in the first inning and climaxed the day's work with four runs in the eighth.

Mrs. Elting Retains Winchester Golf Title

Winchester, Va., Aug. 31.—Mrs. Stewart O. Elting, wife of Maj. Elting, United States Army (retired), successfully defended her title as ladies' champion of the Winchester Golf Club yesterday by defeating Mrs. Nat H. Carpenter, jr., in the finals. She lost only three holes of the 37 played against her four opponents. Eleven were halved and 23 won by the champion, an average of less than one hole lost per match.

Mrs. Fred L. Glaize, jr., won one hole in the first round match, while in semifinals Mrs. W. H. Bosserman won on two holes. Miss Brookie Kern and Mrs. Carpenter were unable to win a single hole. Playing Mrs. Glaize in the first round to win four up and three to go with a 47 for the nine holes put the champion against Miss Kern in the second round.

In this match a 41 for the nine holes, only one over ladies' par, defeated her opponent five and three. Mrs. Bosserman in the third round gave Mrs. Elting her only stiff competition and took two holes from her. Mrs. Elting's 48 was only two up in this match. She ended nine and eight over Mrs. Carpenter with a 48 for the first round of the 18-hole match. These four complete rounds of nine holes were played for an average card of 46.

In the final match a 30-foot putt dropped for Mrs. Elting's par on the eighth hole to halve the only hole she did not win. Mrs. Carpenter has been playing the game less than a year.

TAKOMA NINE WINS OUT IN 12TH

Brunswick Bows, 9-8, as Wilson's Triple Wins for Tigers.

Special to The Washington Post.

BRUNSWICK, MD., Aug. 31—In the most hotly contested game witnessed here in many seasons, the strong Takoma Tigers, champions of the Montgomery County section of the Capital City League, eked out a 9 to 8 victory in twelve innings over the local nine here today.

Wilson's triple drove home Fitzgerald with the winning run in the third extra frame.

Brunswick hopped into an early lead, was passed in the fifth when the Tigers scored three runs, and tied things in the eighth with a rally for two runs, making the score read 6-6.

Tigers Break Tie Twice.

The Tigers broke the deadlock in their half of the ninth, tallying once, and replaced Duffy on the mound with Francis. The latter yielded Brunswick another run to create a second tie. In the tenth Takoma again went ahead by one run, but could not hold its advantage as the locals counted in their half. The eleventh inning was scoreless, but Francis turned back the locals in order in the twelfth after his mates had coined what proved to be the decisive market.

The Tigers made 19 hits, with James leading the attack. Walker was best for Brunswick at the plate.

SILVER SPRING VICTOR.

Goetz' timely hit in the tenth inning gave Silver Spring a 10-9 victory yesterday over the Dixie Pigs. Goetz and Williams each garnered three hits for the winners. Stinson's pitching for Silver Spring was of a fine caliber.

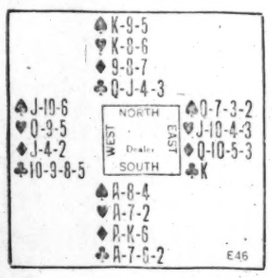
WORK ON BRIDGE

MISPLAYED HANDS I HAVE MET



The above hand is obviously a No-Trump with South the Declarer. In Auction it probably would be one No Trump; in Contract South would bid two and North three.

When it was played West led the Five of Clubs from his only four-card suit; North played the Jack, East the King and South the Ace. The Declarer took in one trick in each of the other suits, keeping each one stopped once more, and then led a Club from closed hand. West played the Eight and dummy the Queen. Then there was no way in which the Declarer could make another Club trick, so he ended by taking two tricks in each suit—one less than game.

THE CORRECT PLAY.

The error in this hand was made on the first card that Declarer played from dummy. The lead of the Five of Clubs showed six Clubs higher than that card not in the hand of the leader (11 minus 5 equals 6). The Declarer could see five of them and knew that East had the other one, but did not know whether it was the King, Ten or Nine. What he should have known was that, if it were the King, the Jack play would cost a trick, and if it were the Ten or Nine, as was most probably the case, the play of the Jack would neither gain nor lose because Declarer could lead Clubs twice from the closed hand. By playing a small Club Declarer must take three Club tricks; by playing the Jack he might take only two.

With the hard luck (?) encountered by the Declarer in the Club distribution playing the small Club ensures game. Never risk a play, no matter how probable its success may be, if there is one that is sure to win.

Miss Mysterious—By Larry Lawrence

SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING CHAPTER.

Thielma Townley, a coed known affectionately to her sorority sisters as Babe, had been gloomy for about a week, a condition very different from her usual sunny disposition. Violet Rimmel, popular on the campus and a very clever girl, finally gets Babe to reveal the cause. Babe tells of the suicide of her guardian, Clement Forseith, at Portland, Oreg., and shows the letter he wrote before taking his life. The letter tells her that she is not Thielma Townley, as she had always believed, and says that she will never learn her true identity. It also says that she is now penniless. A young man named Reuben Morgan, who came from Oregon, is believed to have some information about her identity. Babe resolves to be hard-merciless, in attacking the world, to learn who she is, and to earn her living. As she is reflecting on her life as a child without father or mother, in one school after another, always receiving plenty of money, the door bell rings.

"Gad. You're beautiful," he said.

CHAPTER TWO.

Babe waited a second to gain her composure. She did not want this young man to see how excited she was nor to guess what she had gone through. If he had any information about her she wanted to learn it without appearing to be too eager. A freshman came bounding toward the door to answer. Babe waved her back. "I'll answer," she said and moved calmly to the portal.

"Miss Townley?" the dark, handsome young man questioned.

"Yes. Do come in, Mr. Morgan."

As he stepped across the threshold Babe was acutely conscious of the fact that he was good to look at, but something in his penetrating eyes seemed to send her a note of warning. There was the look there of a predatory animal measuring a meal.

"I wonder if he eats little girls," Babe thought. "Well, I'm looking for cruel men now. I can be as hard as the meanest."

The girls were leaving the table and making that buzzing incessant hum that a group of gay young women can make when there is nothing more weighty on their minds than new styles and the evening's dates.

"Please sit here, before the fire," Babe said. "Don't mind the girls. We will soon be alone."

As he sat facing the fire she realized she had been clever in placing him there as the burning logs would be sure to hold his attention part of the time thus enabling her to study him.

The girls who came in the living room cast glances of approval at Morgan.

One or two rather hated to leave but scenting the fact that there was no ordinary call of a college man, the coeds went to their rooms to snatch a few minutes' study before getting on their party paints.

"Tell me all about the Farraguts," Babe requested.

"There isn't much to tell. Frances is still the charmer of the north coast. There have been a dozen rumors of her engagement, but nothing has come of the rumors. She is having too much fun."

"Mr. and Mrs. Farragut, how are they?"

"Oh, Mr. Farragut seems to be cornering the lumber market and Mrs. Farragut is quite well. Having a lot of pleasure seeing Frances so happy."

"He really knows them," Babe thought. Sketchy as his talk of the family had been it was clear that he was no impostor on that score. He certainly knew them, or knew of them. And he talked easily.

"Frances sent her love to you," he said. "Told me to urge you to come to Portland for the summer."

The Mystery of Forseith.

Still no mention of the suicide. Mr. Morgan talked on easily. Babe steadied her voice and asked as calmly as if she had been asking about the weather, "Do you know Mr. Forseith?"

"I understand that Mr. Forseith did himself in a few days ago," Morgan answered, as if he, too, had been talking of nothing more important than a recent cold snap. Babe didn't answer at once, but a little gasp escaped her lips.

"Oh, are you interested in Forseith in any way?" Morgan asked, noting the slip.

"No, no, not exactly," Babe managed to answer. "I met him once when I was on the coast," she said.

"You didn't know him very well then?"

"Oh no; just thought of him."

"I'm glad to hear that," Morgan said. "He was a crook, if ever there was one. And mysterious, my heavens; he was a mysterious fellow. I had a friend on one of the newspapers. He told me many things about Forseith. This reporter friend of mine spent years digging into his past. But he didn't learn much, I guess. Not much that could be printed. But he was certain that there would be a big story in him some day. Well, I guess the big story was that he killed himself. Still, I don't know. From all the mystery about him it wouldn't surprise me at all if he popped up again. Those things have happened, you know."

Babe started a little at this thought and the keen Mr. Morgan noted this, too. The last girl had left the dining room. They were alone. He turned and looked directly into the girl's eyes.

"Let's quit acting," he said. "I came here from Portland as fast as I could twice when I heard that Forseith had bumped himself off." The polite polished manner he had worn before seemed to drop from him like a mask removed at midnight. "I came to protect you," he said. "I came because I love you."

"Love me? What are you saying, Mr. Morgan?" Babe exclaimed. "Are you crazy?"

"No, I am not crazy. Not by a damn sight. Well, I'll take that back. I'm crazy about you. I've been crazy about you ever since I saw your picture in Forseith's apartment. And I've learned things about you that even you do not know."

A Strange Love Tale.

Again Morgan had made a telling thrust. Babe was burning with desire to know what he knew, but he went no further with that subject. Instead he switched, in an effort to make his love story sound a bit more plausible. His sudden outburst had flattered Babe, he could tell, but he also realized that his few crude words had revealed a part of his nature that he did not want her to see. He tried to get back into the role of suave politeness that he had shed so suddenly.

"Thielma. May I call you Thielma?" he asked, but didn't wait for an answer. "It is the name I have used in talking to you when you did not know it. It is the name I thought of as I lay awake at night wondering what you were doing, wondering if you were going out with callow college youths. Sometimes I even talked to your picture. I stole one from Forseith."

"I don't want to be a picture bride," Babe said. "I have seen picture brides unloaded at the docks of San Francisco. The thought is revolting to me, has always been. But tell me, Mr. Mysterious, why do you think I need your protection or love?" She had recently called herself Miss Mysterious and now she had called him Mr. Mysterious; was there an omen in that?

"Thielma, Thielma, I asked you to stop acting. I stopped. I am being absolutely frank with you. I had planned to spend months wooing you. I had planned to help you without your knowledge. I had planned to win your love with all the little attentions that calculating lovers show, but, you see, I spoke my mind at once, and now I pray that you will give me a chance to prove that I do love you and can protect you."

"You are evading my question," Babe said. "What do you know about me?"

An Offer of Help.

"I know that you are now without any income. I know that you have not been trained to earn a living. I know that you have been accustomed to spending money freely and that you need money."

"Are you trying to buy me?" Babe asked. "Do I look like I am for sale? You are insulting!"

"Forgive me, Thielma, I do not mean to be. I only know I love you and that you are in desperate straits. I want to help."

"Do you know anything of my father and mother?" Babe blurted out.

"No, no, not a thing," Morgan answered, but it seemed to the girl that he was too emphatic in his answer. Maybe he did know.

"I understood that your parents are dead," he hastened to add. "Forseith told me that, I believe." And as he was saying this he was asking himself, "I wonder how much she knows?" Aloud he said, "Please, dear girl, let me help you. Your sisters here, they do not know that you have lost all your money, do they?"

Babe shook her head in what was her first admission to him that he had been right about her affairs.

"Gad, you're beautiful," he said. "Even more beautiful than the picture. More lovely than I had even dreamed."

This brought a flood of color to Babe's cheeks. She couldn't deny in her heart that she was pleased at the praise. A dozen emotions were struggling within her. But she kept reminding herself of her decision to be hard, cruel and wrest her living and birthright from the world.

"Tell me something about yourself," she said a little demurely, without appearing to have heard the compliment.

"Oh, there is little to tell. I am a broker and do pretty well financially. My parents were poor but proud, as Horatio Alger used to say." It was the first display of humor he had given, and he smiled a little as he said it. Babe saw rows of perfect white teeth and had to admit that he was handsome.

A Message of Warning.

"I worked my way through Southern California and started selling bonds, as many of my classmates did. I made good. I got into a firm and am now on my own. I handled some of Forseith's business. I am a little older than I look to be—ah, than I think I look, at any rate—and my temper is pretty even. I am sure I would make a good husband. Of course, I don't speak from experience." He smiled again.

"Well, maybe you would, Mr. Morgan," Thielma answered. "You may file your application, but I think you had better get back to the coast and your business now. I may need help, but I will not take it.

"I have told myself I am penniless, but now that I think it over in a calmer frame of mind I am not exactly without funds. No, I do not need your help, but I thank you for offering it."

The door bell rang again. A freshman ran down from her room to answer it. A boy in the blue uniform of a telegraph company was standing there. The freshman called, "Miss Townley, a telegram for you."

Babe excused herself, went to the door and signed the pad. Her fingers trembled a little as she tore the yellow envelope open. She took one quick glance in the hall. The message read:

"Beware of handsome young man calling himself Morgan."

The message was not signed. It came from Tacoma, Wash.

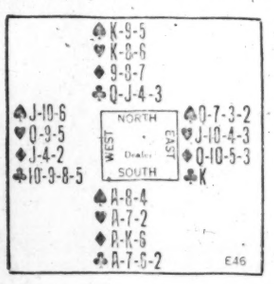
WORK ON BRIDGE

MISPLAYED HANDS I HAVE MET



The above hand is obviously a No-Trump with South the Declarer. In Auction it probably would be one No Trump; in Contract South would bid two and North three.

When it was played West led the Five of Clubs from his only four-card suit; North played the Jack, East the King and South the Ace. The Declarer took in one trick in each of the other suits, keeping each one stopped once, more, and then led a Club from closed hand. West played the Eight and dummy the Queen. Then there was no way in which the Declarer could make another Club trick, so he ended by taking two tricks in each suit—one less than game.

THE CORRECT PLAY.

The error in this hand was made on the first card that Declarer played from dummy. The lead of the Five of Clubs showed six Clubs higher than that card not in the hand of the leader (11 minus 5 equals 6). The Declarer could see five of them and knew that East had the other one, but did not know whether it was the King, Ten or Nine. What he should have known was that, if it were the King, the Jack play would cost a trick, and if it were the Ten or Nine, as was most probably the case, the play of the Jack would neither gain nor lose because Declarer could lead Clubs twice from the closed hand. By playing a small Club Declarer must take three Club tricks; by playing the Jack he might take only two.

With the hard luck (?) encountered by the Declarer in the Club distribution playing the small Club ensures game. Never risk a play, no matter how probable its success may be, if there is one that is sure to win.

Miss Mysterious—By Larry Lawrence

"Gad, You're beautiful," he said.

SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING CHAPTER.

Thielma Townley, a coed known affectionately to her sorority sisters as Babe, had been gloomy for about a week, a condition very different from her usual sunny disposition. Violet Rimmel, popular on the campus and a very clever girl, finally gets Babe to reveal the cause. Babe tells of the suicide of her guardian, Clement Forseith, at Portland, Oreg., and shows the letter he wrote before taking his life. The letter tells her that she is not Thielma Townley, as she had always believed, and says that she will never learn her true identity. It also says that she is now penniless. A young man named Reuben Morgan, who came from Oregon, is believed to have some information about her identity. Babe resolves to be hard, merciless, in attacking the world, to learn who she is and to earn her living. As she is reflecting on her life as a child, without father or mother, in one school after another, always receiving plenty of money, the door bell rings.

CHAPTER TWO.

Babe waited a second to gain her composure. She did not want this young man to see how excited she was nor to guess what she had gone through. If he had any information about her she wanted to learn it without appearing to be too eager. A freshman came bounding toward the door to answer. Babe waved her back. "I'll answer," she said and moved calmly to the portal.

"Miss Townley?" the dark, handsome young man questioned.

"Yes. Do come in, Mr. Morgan."

As he stepped across the threshold Babe was acutely conscious of the fact that he was good to look at, but something in his penetrating eyes seemed to send her a note of warning. There was the look there of a predatory animal measuring a meal.

"I wonder if he eats little girls," Babe thought. "Well, I'm looking for cruel men now. I can be as hard as the meanest."

The girls were leaving the table and making that buzzing incessant hum that a group of gay young women can make when there is nothing more weighty on their minds than new styles and the evening's dates.

"Please sit here, before the fire," Babe said. "Don't mind the girls. We will soon be alone."

As he sat facing the fire she realized she had been clever in placing him there as the burning logs would be sure to hold his attention part of the time thus enabling her to study him.

The girls who came in the living room cast glances of approval at Morgan. One or two rather hated to leave but scenting the fact that there was no ordinary call of a college man, the coeds went to their rooms to snatch a few minutes' study before getting on their party paints.

"Tell me all about the Farraguts," Babe requested.

"There isn't much to tell. Frances is still the charmer of the north coast. There have been a dozen rumors of her engagement, but nothing has come of the rumors. She is having too much fun."

"Mr. and Mrs. Farragut, how are they?"

"Oh, Mr. Farragut seems to be cornering the lumber market and Mrs. Farragut is quite well. Having a lot of pleasure seeing Frances so happy."

"He really knows them," Babe thought. Sketchy as his talk of the family had been it was clear that he was no impostor on that score. He certainly knew them, or knew of them. And he talked easily.

"Frances sent her love to you," he said. "Told me to urge you to come to Portland for the summer."

The Mystery of Forseith.

Still no mention of the suicide. Mr. Morgan talked on easily. Babe steadied her voice and asked as calmly as if she had been asking about the weather, "Do you know Mr. Forseith?"

"I understand that Mr. Forseith did himself in a few days ago," Morgan answered, as if he, too, had been talking of nothing more important than a recent cold snap. Babe didn't answer at once, but a little gasp escaped her lips.

"Oh, are you interested in Forseith in any way?" Morgan asked, noting the slip.

"No, no, not exactly," Babe managed to answer. "I met him once when I was on the coast," she said.

"You didn't know him very well then?"

"Oh no; just thought of him."

"I'm glad to hear that," Morgan said. "He was a crook, if ever there was one. And mysterious, my heavens; he was a mysterious fellow. I had a friend on one of the newspapers. He told me many things about Forseith. This reporter friend of mine spent years digging into his past. But he didn't learn much, I guess. Not much that could be printed. But he was certain that there would be a big story in him some day. Well, I guess the big story was that he killed himself. Still, I don't know. From all the mystery about him it wouldn't surprise me at all if he popped up again. Those things have happened, you know."

Babe started a little at this thought and the keen Mr. Morgan noted this, too. The last girl had left the dining room. They were alone. He turned and looked directly into the girl's eyes.

"Let's quit acting," he said. "I came here from Portland as fast as I could travel when I heard that Forseith had bumped himself off." The polite polished manner he had worn before seemed to drop from him like a mask removed at midnight. "I came to protect you," he said. "I came because I love you."

"Love me? What are you saying, Mr. Morgan?" Babe exclaimed. "Are you crazy?"

"No, I am not crazy. Not by a damn sight. Well, I'll take that back. I'm crazy about you. I've been crazy about you ever since I saw your picture in Forseith's apartment. And I've learned things about you that even you do not know."

A Strange Love Tale.

Again Morgan had made a telling thrust. Babe was burning with desire to know what he knew, but he went no further with that subject. Instead he switched, in an effort to make his love story sound a bit more plausible. His sudden outburst had flattered Babe, he could tell, but he also realized that his few crude words had revealed a part of his nature that he did not want her to see. He tried to get back into the role of suave politeness that he had shed so suddenly.

"Thielma, May I call you Thielma?" he asked, but didn't wait for an answer. "It is the name I have used in talking to you when you did not know it. It is the name I thought of as I lay awake at night wondering what you were doing, wondering if you were going out with callow college youths. Sometimes I even talked to your picture. I stole one from Forseith."

"I don't want to be a picture bride," Babe said. "I have seen picture brides unloaded at the docks of San Francisco. The thought is revolting to me, has always been. But tell me, Mr. Mysterious, why do you think I need your protection or love?" She had recently called herself Miss Mysterious and now she had called him Mr. Mysterious; was there an omen in that?

"Thielma, Thielma, I asked you to stop acting. I stopped. I am being absolutely frank with you. I had planned to spend months wooing you. I had planned to help you without your knowledge. I had planned to win your love with all the little attentions that calculating lovers show, but, you see, I spoke my mind at once, and now I pray that you will give me a chance to prove that I do love you and can protect you."

"You are evading my question," Babe said. "What do you know about me?"

An Offer of Help.

"I know that you are now without any income. I know that you have not been trained to earn a living. I know that you have been accustomed to spending money freely and that you need money."

"Are you trying to buy me?" Babe asked. "Do I look like I am for sale? You are insulting!"

"Forgive me, Thielma, I do not mean to be, I only know I love you and that you are in desperate straits. I want to help."

"Do you know anything of my father and mother?" Babe blurted out.

"No, no, not a thing," Morgan answered, but it seemed to the girl that he was too emphatic in his answer. Maybe he did know.

"I understood that your parents are dead," he hastened to add. "Forseith told me that, I believe." And as he was saying this he was asking himself, "I wonder how much she knows?" Aloud he said, "Please, dear girl, let me help you. Your sisters here, they do not know that you have lost all your money, do they?"

Babe shook her head in what was her first admission to him that he had been right about her affairs.

"Gad, you're beautiful," he said. "Even more beautiful than the picture. More lovely than I had even dreamed."

This brought a flood of color to Babe's cheeks. She couldn't deny in her heart that she was pleased at the praise. A dozen emotions were struggling within her. But she kept reminding herself of her decision to be hard, cruel and wrest her living and birthright from the world.

"Tell me something about yourself," she said a little demurely, without appearing to have heard the compliment.

"Oh, there is little to tell. I am a broker and do pretty well financially. My parents were poor but proud, as Horatio Alger used to say." It was the first display of humor he had given, and he smiled a little as he said it. Babe saw rows of perfect white teeth and had to admit that he was handsome.

A Message of Warning.

"I worked my way through Southern California and started selling bonds, as many of my classmates did. I made good. I got into a firm and am now on my own. I handled some of Forseith's business. I am a little older than I look to be—ah, than I think I look, at any rate—and my temper is pretty even. I am sure I would make a good husband. Of course, I don't speak from experience." He smiled again.

"Well, maybe you would, Mr. Morgan," Thielma answered. "You may file your application, but I think you had better get back to the coast and your business now. I may need help, but I will not take it.

"I have told myself I am penniless, but now that I think it over in a calmer frame of mind I am not exactly without funds. No, I do not need your help, but I thank you for offering it."

The door bell rang again. A freshman ran down from her room to answer it. A boy in the blue uniform of a telegraph company was standing there. The freshman called, "Miss Townley, a telegram for you."

Babe excused herself, went to the door and signed the pad. Her fingers trembled a little as she tore the yellow envelope open. She took one quick glance in the hall. The message read: "Beware of handsome young man calling himself Morgan."

The message was not signed. It came from Tacoma, Wash.

MONDAY MORNING — The Washington Post. — SEPTEMBER 1, 1930

NEWS OF LATEST HAPPENINGS IN MARYLAND AND VIRGINIA

HEARING OF HEDRICK TO CONTINUE TODAY

Interest Is Revived in Fight of Women Voters to Oust Arlington Official.

LARGE CROWD EXPECTED

ARLINGTON COUNTY.
BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

The battle of the Organized Women Voters of Arlington County to oust Supervisor B. M. Hedrick for his alleged activities in connection with the installation of sewers and water in the Waycroft subdivision owned and developed by the Arlington Investment Corporation, of which he is a stockholder and a director, will be resumed in the Arlington County Circuit Court tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock before Circuit Judge Alexander Browning, of Orange.

The charges against Hedrick were brought by the women voters in the form of a petition presented to Circuit Judge Walter T. McCarthy in June. The petition was signed by the president, Ruby G. Simpson; Mary G. Williams, corresponding secretary; Bertha S. Kelley, chairman of the executive committee; Alice W. Semones, member of the executive committee; Ada H. Davidson, of the executive committee; Jessie W. Hunt, of the civic committee, and Florence E. Cannon, parliamentarian.

The prosecution, which will be handled by Commonwealth's Attorney William C. Gloth, who will be assisted by Attorney Burnett Miller, of Culpeper, contends that installations were made at the county's expense and without the furnishing by the company of the notes required by the county government when the installation is not paid for at the time the work is being done.

The defense, headed by Wilson M. Farr, Commonwealth's attorney, of Fairfax, and Capt. Crandal Mackey with Edgar W. Pumphrey appearing in behalf of the corporation, denies all of the charges as brought, claiming that the installations in question were made in the proper and legal method and that no irregularities exist now or at any other time.

The case has attracted county-wide interest, and indications are that with the opening of court tomorrow morning a large crowd will be in attendance.

Lawrence Michael, secretary of the John Marshall Highway Association, is perfecting arrangements for the fifth annual meeting of that organization which will be held next Saturday at Throughfare Gap This organization is sponsoring the construction of a coast-to-coast highway as a memorial to the late Chief Justice John Marshall.

The first section of this highway has already, with the exception of only about 10 miles, been taken over by the Virginia State Highway Commission.

One of the principal speakers at the meeting next Saturday will be State Senator Frank L. Ball, of Arlington County, who will deliver an address on John Marshall. Among other prominent speakers will be Representative R. Walton Moore, Howard W. Smith of Alexandria, Democratic nominee to succeed Mr. Moore, and John Barton Payne, president of the American Red Cross and honorary president of the John Marshall Highway Association.

The route of the highway across Arlington County will be that of the so-called straight-to-the-bridge boulevard, passing through Clarendon and Ballston.

The meeting will be an all-day affair with a basket picnic at noon and it is anticipated that a large delegation from Arlington County will attend the meeting. Hugh E. Naylor, of Front Royal, will preside.

After having had an opportunity to study a comprehensive report from the special committee of the Arlington County Civic Federation, which for the past two months has been making a study of the forms of county government and carrying with it recommendations for the county-manager plan with a county board of five members, efforts will be made at the meeting of the federation tomorrow night to have the report adopted. It is understood that efforts will also be made to have a special election called in November so that the matter can be brought before the people without further delay.

The committee take the view that the question of a change in the form of county government should be speeded up as much as possible in view of the fact that it is conceded that the present form is inadequate to take care of the rapid growth of the county.

Under the act of the legislature, the change can not become effective until January, 1932. The act further provides that the members of the board numbering five shall be elected at the next regular election following the adoption of the plan and shall take office the following January.

The committee in its study made a study of reports from leading authorities on the subject of local government and it has been found that they are in general agreement that 25 years with the commission plan of government has revealed many inherent weaknesses which are absent from the county manager plan.

The county manager plan will abolish the present system of disproportionate representation on the county board. Under the present system, each magisterial district is entitled to one representative on the board, irrespective of its population. The latest census of Arlington County shows the population of the magisterial districts to be as follows: Arlington district, 17,844; Jefferson district, 3,104, and Washington district, 5,666. Arlington district has two-thirds of the entire population of the county and only one-third of the membership of the board.

It will establish a single administrative head for the county government known as the county manager who is appointed for a term of one year and can not be removed during the year for which appointed except for causes as set forth in the act.

Under the present form the directing engineer by the terms of the board of supervisors' resolution creating that office is subject at all times and in all respects in the discharge of his functions "to the approval and the orders of the board." He can not hire and fire his subordinates. He is himself subject to removal from office by the board at its pleasure and the board has the power to dictate to him as to the manner in which he shall perform any and all of his administrative functions.

Announcement is made that the Parent-Teacher Association of the Matthew Fontaine Maury School at Clarendon will hold its first meeting of the fall season Thursday night at the schoolhouse.

Arlington Chapter No. 149 Daughters of the Confederacy will meet tomorrow night in the rooms of the Arlington County Chamber of Commerce at 8 o'clock.

Margaret King Circle of St. George's Episcopal Church will meet tomorrow afternoon with Mrs. Beatrice Upfold at her home in Cherry Valley road, Ballston.

Ballston Council, No. 20, Daughters of America, will meet tomorrow night at 8 o'clock in the auditorium of the Ballston firemen's hall.

BANK REPORT SHOWS EFFECT OF DROUGHT

Business Developments of Recent Months of Seasonal Nature, It Is Said.

LOANS FALL SLIGHTLY

Richmond, Va., Aug. 31 (A.P.).—The drought has struck a blow at almost every business activity, and it is possible that its full effects are yet to be felt, says the monthly review of conditions in the Fifth Federal Reserve District reported by William W. Hoxton, chairman and Federal Reserve agent.

Although the forecasts of cotton and tobacco yields in the district are higher this year than in 1929, due to gains in the Carolinas, the price situation is discouraging for both cotton and tobacco, the report says. Unless there is a marked change for the better, it adds, the larger yields this season will not nearly compensate for the drop in prices since last fall, and signs of such a change are not now apparent.

Developments Are Seasonal.

Business developments during the last months were mainly of a seasonal nature, the report continues, but trade continued in a smaller volume than a year ago. Member banks in rural sections slightly increased their borrowing at the reserve bank, due chiefly to the opening of tobacco markets in South Carolina and border counties in North Carolina, but the usual increase at this season in the circulation of Federal Reserve notes did not occur between the middle of July and the middle of August.

Between July 9 and August 13 this year loans of member banks on stocks and bonds decreased by $4,681,000, but all other loans, which are chiefly commercial or agricultural, rose by $4,144,000. These changes resulted in a net decline in outstanding loans amounting to $537,000, or one-tenth of 1 per cent during the month.

Changes in All Items.

Comparison of the August 13, 1930, figures of reporting member banks with those for August 14, 1929, showed relatively large changes in nearly all items. Total loans and discounts dropped $46,783,000 during the period, loans on stocks and bonds decreased $20,953,000 and all other loans declined $25,830,000. On the other hand, aggregate deposits in the reporting banks increased by $19,869,000, an unusual occurrence in the face of material reductions in loans.

The figures tended to show that reporting member banks are lending considerably less than at the middle of August last year, but they have increased their investments in securities, their deposits are higher and their rediscounts at the reserve bank are much lower this year.

Lower Price Levels Indicated.

Debits to individual accounts figures showed the influence of lower price levels and generally depressed business this year, running about 10 per cent lower than last year. A decline at this time is seasonal, the report explained, but it is rarely that the seasonal decline is shown in every city on the list. Durham, N. C., and Portsmouth, Va., reported the smallest decreases in the district.

Time deposits in 56 regularly reporting members banks rose during the last month to a figure higher than at the corresponding time a year ago, total time deposits on August 13, 1930, amounting to $253,002,000, comparing with $247,328,000 on July 9 this year and $238,875,000 on August 14, 1929.

An attractive program was presented, with a large crowd of auditors giving the band a rousing demonstration. Accompanying the band to this city were various other members of the fire company and approximately 300 residents of Bedford.

Several smaller bands of other visiting volunteer fire companies also gave concerts in other parts of the city during the afternoon and night.

Va., Aug. 31.—Walter Hutzler, 47, well-known resident of Berkeley County, died at a local hospital Sunday morning from injuries he received late Saturday night when struck by an automobile while walking along Berkeley Springs-Hancock road, 20 miles west of here. FIREMEN, AT WORK, FIND WHISKY STILL Falls Church Department Answers Call and Discovers Plant in Bushes.

BLAZE CONSUMES BRUSH

Liquor raids are rather out of the line of the activities of the Falls Church Volunteer Fire Department, but yesterday afternoon it responded to a brush fire call and returned with a 15-gallon still aboard the truck.

An anonymous telephone call informed the department of the small blaze in a patch of woods near Balleys Crossroads. Just as the firemen were about to extinguish the fire, the odor of corn whisky came to their nostrils

An investigation by Assistant Chief Cline Donaldson and Firemen Joseph B. Birch and George Clark revealed the still hidden by bushes nearby. It was in operation, and the copper container was full of liquor in the making. A five-gallon keg was smoldering.

The brush fire had apparently been started by sparks emanating from the still, firemen said, and the outfit was abandoned when the flames got beyond control.

After extinguishing the fire, the firemen mounted the apparatus on a truck and took it to Falls Church. They said they would turn it over to Sheriff Eppa Kirby, of Fairfax County

Harrisonburg Increases Water Supply of City

Special to The Washington Post.

Harrisonburg, Va., Aug. 31 (A.P.).—The city of Harrisonburg today increased its municipal water supply to approximately normal by starting pumps, bringing into the city's reservoirs water from Silver Lake, the largest body of water in the Valley, from which the town of Dayton has been getting its water for years. At 10 o'clock this morning, Mayor John W. Morrison and city engineers gave the signal to start the pumps.

Water is still flowing into the city mains through Riven Rock, the regular source of the city's supply in the North Mountains, twelve miles west of the city, and the water from Silver Lake will be used as an auxiliary supply until rains replenish the mountain supply.

Virginia Peanut Crop "Blasted" by Drought

Special to The Washington Post.

Petersburg, Va., Aug. 31.—The drought has played havoc with the peanut crop in the vicinity of Ivor, on the Norfolk & Western Railway, about 40 miles from Petersburg.

This is one of the largest peanut sections in Southside Virginia and in view of the outlook, farmers are much discouraged. The dry weather has caused the peanuts to become "blasted." One planter, who has a farm of 140 acres planted in peanuts, stated that he did not believe he would realize 50 bushels from the entire farm. Wells are said to be fast becoming dry, which is something never known before.

The oil company explosion occurred at 4:30 a. m., the clock in the office being stopped at that hour by the force of the blast.

LOUDOUN TO GET FAIR IN SPITE OF DROUGHT

Purcellville Exhibition, Which Will Open September 17, to Include Horse Show.

SEVERAL PRIZES LISTED

Special to The Washington Post.

Purcellville, Va., Aug. 31.—Despite the long drought, which will curtail the display of farm crops and garden produce, the Loudoun County Fair and Horse Show will be held at Purcellville Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday, September 17, 18, 19 and 20, as was originally planned. Although the agricultural exhibits can not be expected to come up to those of previous years, other departments are expected to surpass those of any former fair.

The first day of the fair has been designated children's day when all the schools of the county will be closed and school children admitted free. Fourteen classes in ponies will be shown on that day, all to be exhibited by children from 5 to 14 years of age. The athletic events, which will be held on the opening day, will be under the direction of William L. Leitch, assistant executive Boy Scouts of America, Virginia Area District, District of Columbia Council. These will consist of foot races for girls and boys, 6 to 15 years of age; running high jump for girls and boys, 6 to 15; three-legged race for all, 8 to 15; roll in barrel for boys, 10 to 15; baseball throwing, potato race on pony, baseball game and tug of war.

Entries in the athletic events will be made immediately preceding the contests, with no entrance fees. Miss Charlotte Noland, of Middleburg, gives the prizes in the above sporting events, which will consist of medals for first places and suitable awards for second and third places. The play will be according to the rules of the National Federation of State School Athletic Associations.

The baby show will consist of two classes, 6 months to 1 year and 1 to 3 years.

The second and third days of the exhibition will be devoted to hunter classes, of which there are 25 classes this year. The Corinthian class will carry the handsome Exmore Memorial Trophy. There will also be a hunter championship this year.

Heavy drafts, pure-bred Guernseys and pure-bred Holsteins will be shown on the last day. The swine department and the sheep department have been increased this year. OceanHopAspirant Takes First Flight

Marie Buch Pilots Plane Alone After Short Dual Instruction.

An important miletsone in a career that she intends to crown with a transatlantic solo flight to her native Denmark was passed yesterday morning by Miss Marie C. Busch, of 723 Fifteenth street northwest, when she flew a plane alone for the first time.

A member of the District of Columbia Air Legion, she ventured aloft in that organization's Bird in a flight over Hybla Valley, Va., after she had received dual instruction in the same craft for an hour and one-half during the morning.

Miss Busch came to the United States five years ago and immediately became infused with the desire to become a pilot. She attended a flying school for several months before she learned that she would have no opportunity to fly a training plane in connection with the course. Then upon taking thirteen hours of dual instruction in another school, she joined the air legion and started preparation for her proposed ocean hop.

Traffic Blocked By Forest Blaze

Traffic on the Marlboro Boulevard was blocked for more than an hour last night by curious motorists who stopped to see volunteer firemen battle with a forest fire which swept about 75 acres of forest land on the property of George Thorne, brother of Judge Millard Thorne, at Camp Springs.

Fire apparatus from Marlboro, Boulevard eights, Capitol eights and Greater Capitol Heights had great difficulty in threading its way through the heavy traffic en route to the fire. The firemen battled the flames, which at one time threatened the Thorne residence, for nearly two hours before the fire was brought into control.

The Thornes were not at home at the time of the fire. The residence was saved by the work of the firemen, who were greatly impeded by the lack of adequate water.

NEW FALLS CHURCH COUNCIL IS CALLED

Session Tonight Faced by Water Situation and Highway Opening.

RELIEF POST FOR ALLEN

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST.
P. O. Box 245, Fairfax, Va.
Phone Clarendon 2324-W-2.

The new Falls Church Town Council, which takes office today, will hold its first meeting this evening at 8 o'clock, according to the announcement made yesterday by Maj. Leonard P. Daniel, new mayor of the town. Members of the council are: Frank Birch and W. T. Parrott, for the First Ward; Dr. Julius Parmelee and J. V. Turner, for the Second Ward, and Milton Roberts and Charles Gage, for the Third Ward. The first part of tonight's meeting will be an organization meeting. Following routine business the chief topics for discussion will be the water situation in the Fairfax County portion of the town and the proposed widening of the Lee highway and Broad street.

The State Highway Commission is planning to divert the $100,000 originally appropriated for the preliminary work on Lee boulevard to widen the Lee highway from Halls Hill through the town to a standard 30 feet in width. The State has asked the town to assure that three lanes of traffic would be kept open at all times. This would cause the town to have to construct parking space on each side of the road and to relay the sidewalks inside of the present line of shade trees.

The question before the new council will be whether the town can afford to finance the additional improvements from its own revenues. It has been estimated that to rebuild the sidewalks would cost $3,000 and to allow a 10-foot parking space on each side would cost $8,000, a total of $11,000, over what the State would pay.

Thomas P. Chapman, who was reelected mayor of the town of Fairfax, has announced that the organization of the new town council, which takes office today, will not take place until tomorrow evening. The town council members are Edgar Littleton, James E. Nickell, O. B. Cambell, A. R. Sherwood, H. N. Clarke and Lewis Coyner. One of the main topics to be discussed will be the offer of the State Highway Commission to take over the maintenance of the two State roads through the town.

Edmund H. Allen, of Newington, president of the Fairfax County Chamber of Commerce, was recommended for appointment as Fairfax County drought relief chairman at the meeting of the county drought committee, composed of representatives from the County Chamber of Commerce, the Farmers Advisory Council and the County Pomona Grange. The committee sent a telegram to Harry F. Byrd, chairman of Gov. John G. Pollard's State Drought Commission, urging Allen's appointment immediately.

The magisterial district committees are being organized to make a survey of each district in the county to find out the amount of feed, fertilizer and other farm materials needed; the number of unemployed men in the districts, laborers or mechanics, and whether they are married or single, and the available water supply of each farmer. The Mount Vernon and Falls Church District committees have been organized, with the following members: Mount Vernon District, Frank Wilkinson, chairman; E. C. BANK OFFICER HURT AS AUTO HITS POLE

Hit-and-Run Driver Sought in Three Other Crashes in Maryland.

MAN RUN DOWN ON ROAD

Thomas J. Groom, vice president and cashier of the Washington Mechanics & Savings Bank, was seriously injured, and his cousin, Charles Groom, sustained a broken arm, and severe bruises early yesterday morning in one of a series of nearby Maryland automobile accidents that brought injuries to a half dozen persons.

Mr. Groom and his cousin were returning to Washington about 3 a. m. when their machine left the Rockville pike near Bethesda and struck a telephone pole. Two women companions, whose names were not learned, escaped without injury.

Skull Was Fractured.

Thomas Groom was taken to the Georgetown Hospital, where examination revealed a fracture of the skull and severe body bruises. He regained consciousness late last night, and was expected to survive. He lives at 22 Girard street northeast. Charles Groom sustained a broken left arm and cuts about the leg. He was treated at Emergency Hospital.

Careening down the Olney pike at a rapid pace, a colored driver last night collided with the machine of Miss Eva Morry, of 705 Eighteenth street northwest, backed up and continued on his way. About a mile from Olney Inn he struck a pedestrian, Josh Selby, colored, and left his victim lying in the road with a possible fracture of the skull and other serious injuries. A little further down the road the machine turned over in a ditch. Police traced the tags to James White, colored, of Granite, Md., but were unable to locate him last night.

Two Children Hurt.

Emery Johnson, colored, who admitted being in the hit-and-run car, was arrested He named White as the driver.

Howard C. Reed, 52, of Tuxedo, Md., driving east on Benning road last night, crashed headlong into a machine operated by Thomas Washington, colored, of Landover, Md. Mr. Reed's two small sons, William H. and Clifton, were treated at Casualty Hospital for minor cuts and bruises. No arrests were made.

Mildred Keller, 6, and Chester H. Keller, jr., received slight cuts and bruises when a car driven by their father, Chester Keller, of 317 Aspen street northwest, collided with a machine near White Oak, Md., last night. John Taft Fulcher, of 1014 B street southwest, was driving the other car. No arrests followed.

NEW COUNCILMEN WILL BE SWORN IN

Two Officials to Take Oath at Meeting Today in Alexandria.

U.D.C. WILL GIVE MEDAL

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU.
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

The city council will meet at noon today, when two of the three newly-elected members will be sworn in—Arthur Herbert and Edmund F. Ticer. The third new member, Clyde C. Lamond, is out of the city and will not return until Thursday, when the first regular meeting of the new council will be held, and a mayor, vice mayor and clerk will be chosen. It is generally understood that Carroll Pierce, who was chosen by the council to succeed Mayor William Albert Smoot last March when the latter resigned, will be chosen president of the council, or ex officio mayor. Mr. Ticer, vice president or vice mayor, will be relected, and that Purvis Taylor, for the last eight years clerk of the council, will be reelected to that position.

The new members will be sworn in by Judge William P. Woolls, of the corporation court. It is not expected that any business will come before this meeting today, it being held merely for the purpose of swearing in the new members, whose terms begin today and are for four years.

A number of major problems will confront the new council, one of them being the proposed sale of the city gas plant, and the granting of a 30-year franchise for its operation. Bids for the sale and the franchise have been invited and will be opened Thursday, September 11.

The proposed sale has failed to arouse the comment that was expected, the majority of citizens being of the opinion that its sale and operation other than by the city will mean better service and lower prices for gas. It is expected there will be at least three bids, which are being awaited with interest.

The matter of fixing the tax rate for the five-year period beginning next January also will receive early consideration. The manner of assessing the real estate tax will be radically changed, since, instead of assessing the property at approximately one-third its market value, the intention is to assess at the total value and reduce the tax rate. The present rate is $2.65 on each $100 of assessed valuation, and it is understood the new rate will be $1 on each $100, and afford an increased revenue to the city.

The question of sewerage and street improvements in the newly annexed territory will also come up for consideration within the next few months. The extension of the school facilities, particularly in the older portion of the city, is another question which must be considered. One school trustee will be chosen to succeed Arthur Herbert, who vacated that position upon his election as a member of the council.

The Mary Custis Lee-Seventeenth Virginia Regiment Chapter, United Daughters of the Confederacy, will hold a special meeting at 8 o'clock tomorrow evening, in Lee Camp Hall, when they will have as the guest of honor Rear Admiral Watt Tyler Cluverius, U. S. Navy, and the chapter will present to Admiral Cluverius the Daughters of the Confederacy Cross of Military Service, which is given by this organization to the son or grandson of a Confederate soldier, who served in the World War.

Admiral Cluverius telegraphed Col. Edgar Warfield, of Robert E. Lee Camp of Confederate Veterans, yesterday that he will be in Washington on Tuesday, September 2, and could meet with the daughters, as plans had been made to confer this cross on June 3 last, when the admiral was ordered away from Norfolk, where he had been stationed, and the ceremony deferred until he could reach Washington.

The entertainment will be in charge of Mrs. Charles M. Shepperson, president of the chapter, and R. Samuel Luckett, commander of Robert E. Lee Camp, Sons of Confederate Veterans, and will be attended by the members of both organizations.

Virginia's Bright Tobacco Crop Fair

Petersburg Section Looks for 75 Per Cent of 1929 Output.

Special to The Washington Post.

Petersburg, Va., Aug. 31.—With the opening of the bright tobacco market here September 30, warehouses throughout the city are busy getting in shape for the handling of the usual first day rush.

Farmers in this section of the State expect to realize a fair 1930 crop in spite of the drought that caused heavy damage. In many cases hundreds of hills of the best tobacco were ruined, but farmers expect the fall crop to be at least 75 per cent as good as that of 1929.

When farmers were about to despair of making even a fair crop rain fell and saved the greater part of the crops. Prior to rainfall an unusually large percentage of bottom leaves had been pulled and cured.

Growers in other sections of Virginia have not been as successful as farmers in this section, it being reported that in many sections rain failed to fall before the greater portion of the tobacco was seriously affected.
